PERSPECTIVES '85

Change and growth are the city's sustenance. Like the cycles of life, with its revolutions of growth, it constantly rebuilds and is seasoned by a never-ending kaleidescopic array of bustling, contributing cultures and its flavors of varying customs. The city creates new paths, new establishments — transforming and restoring — like needy babes, who having once hungered for knowledge, now gallantly understand and concept independently. Its businesses and neighborhoods are its utensils — the tools the city uses to nourish itself. The city starves for tastes of life and, once fed, changes in strength and direction. We too must continuously rebuild; only then, can we reap the full rewards of life.

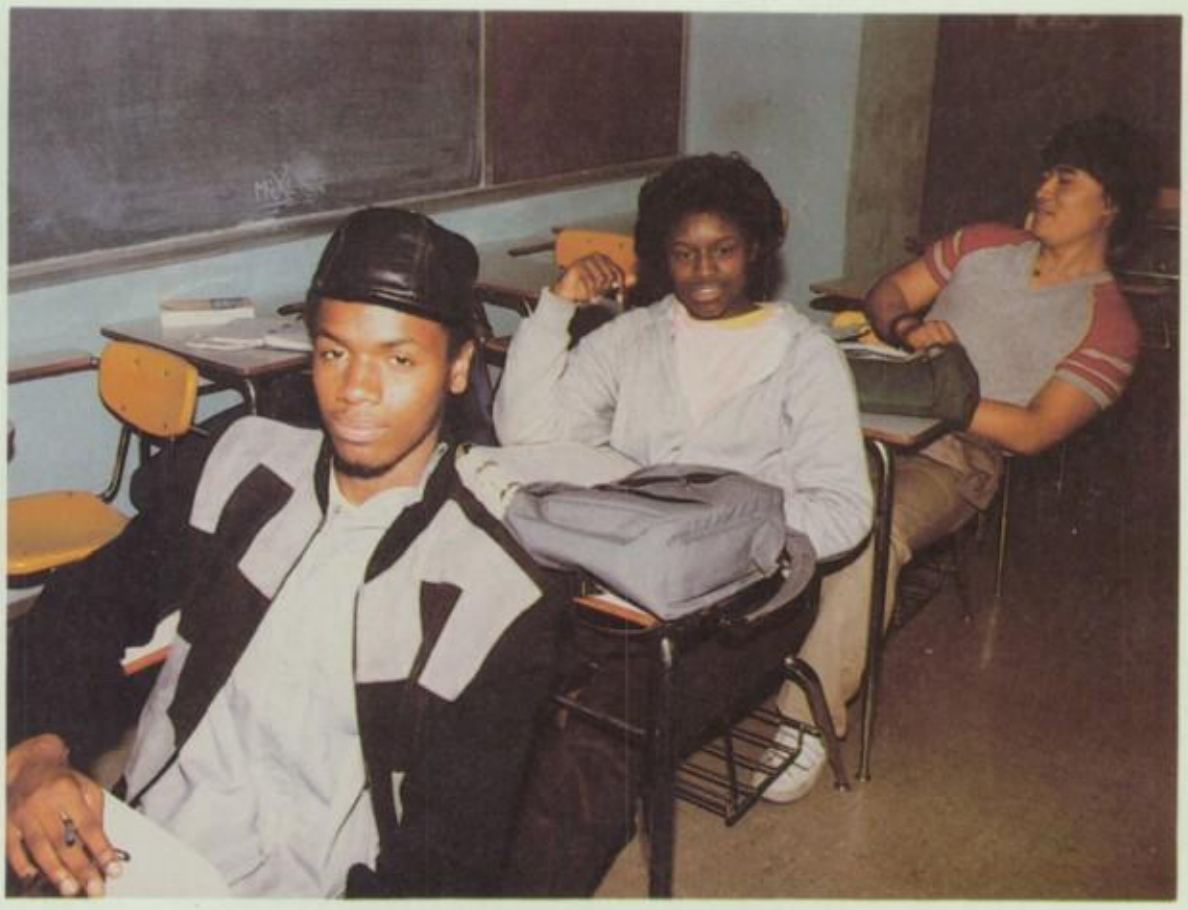
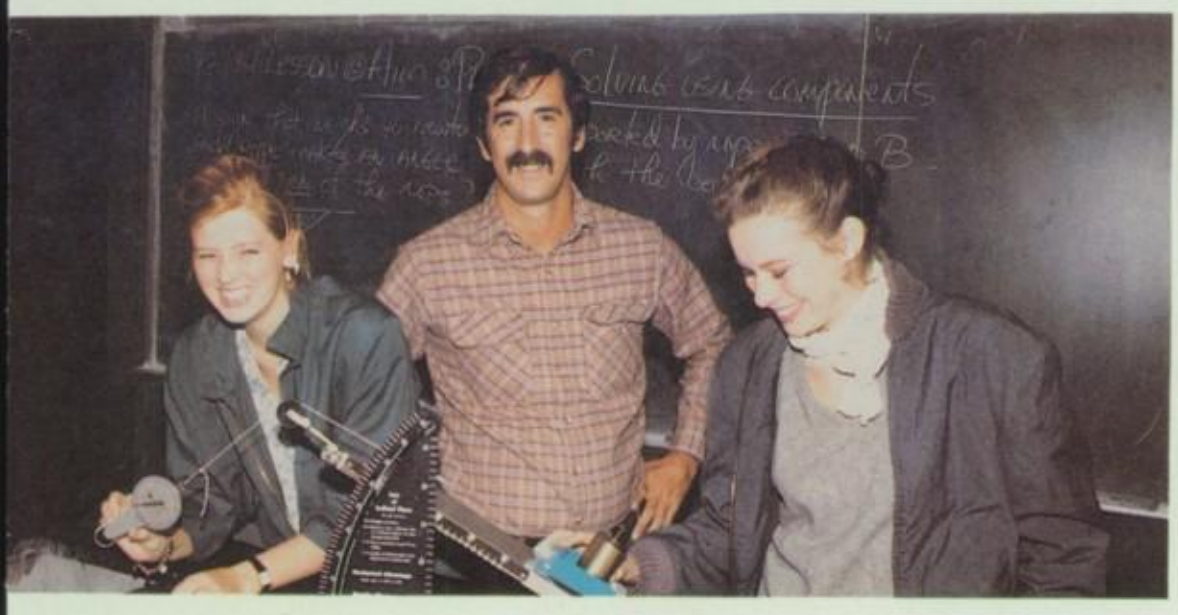
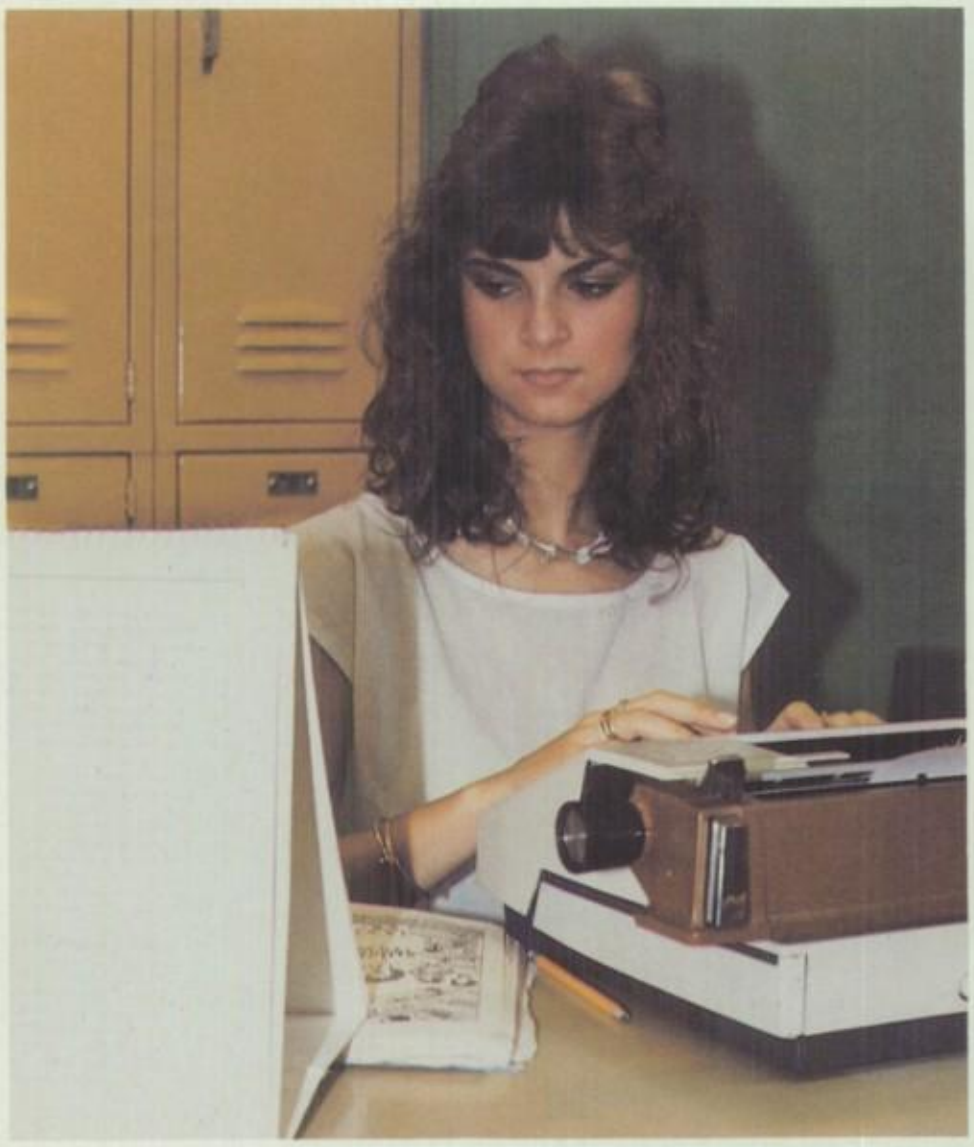
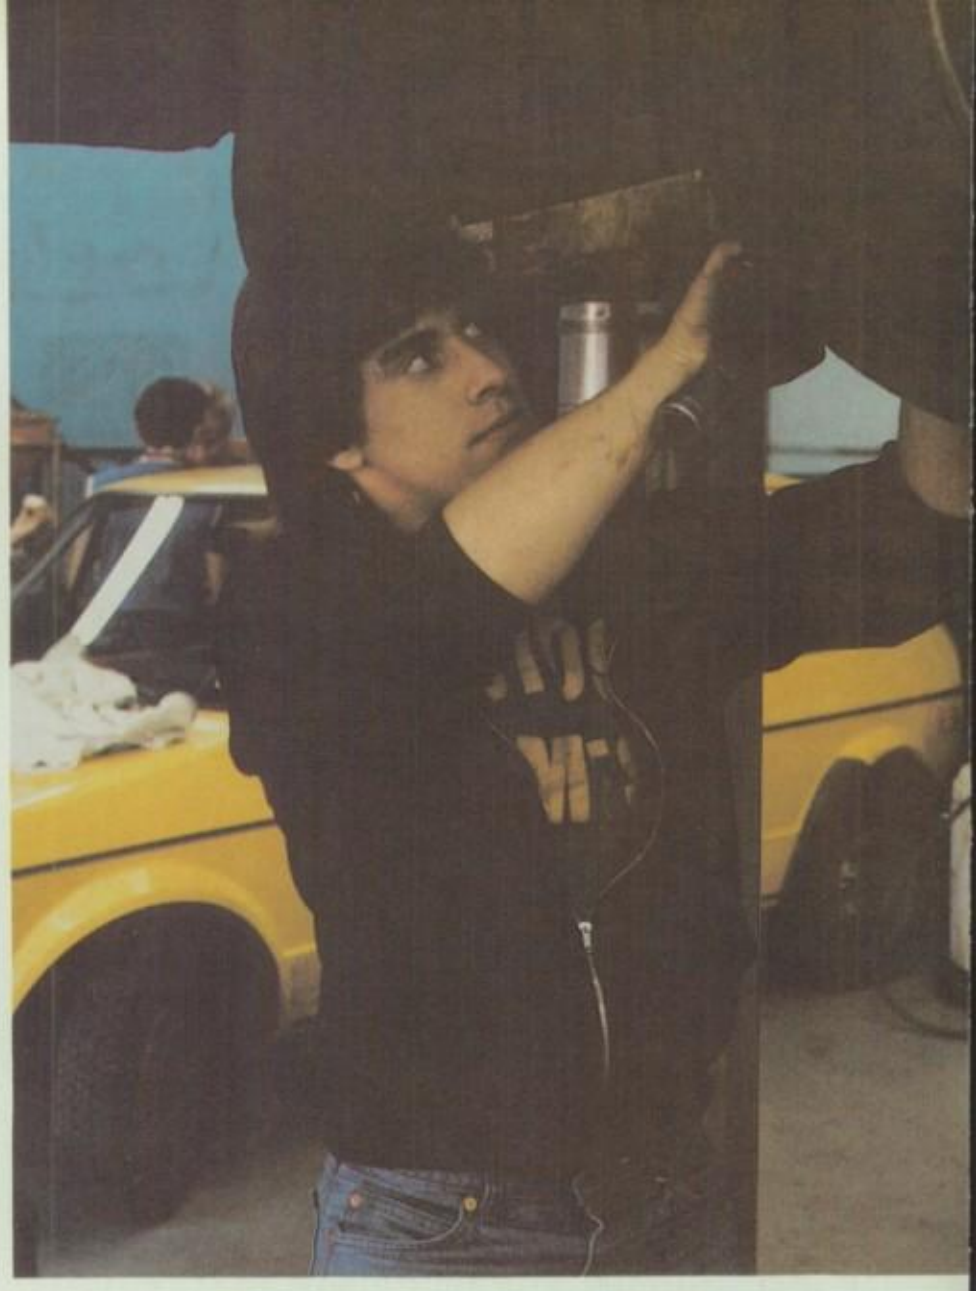
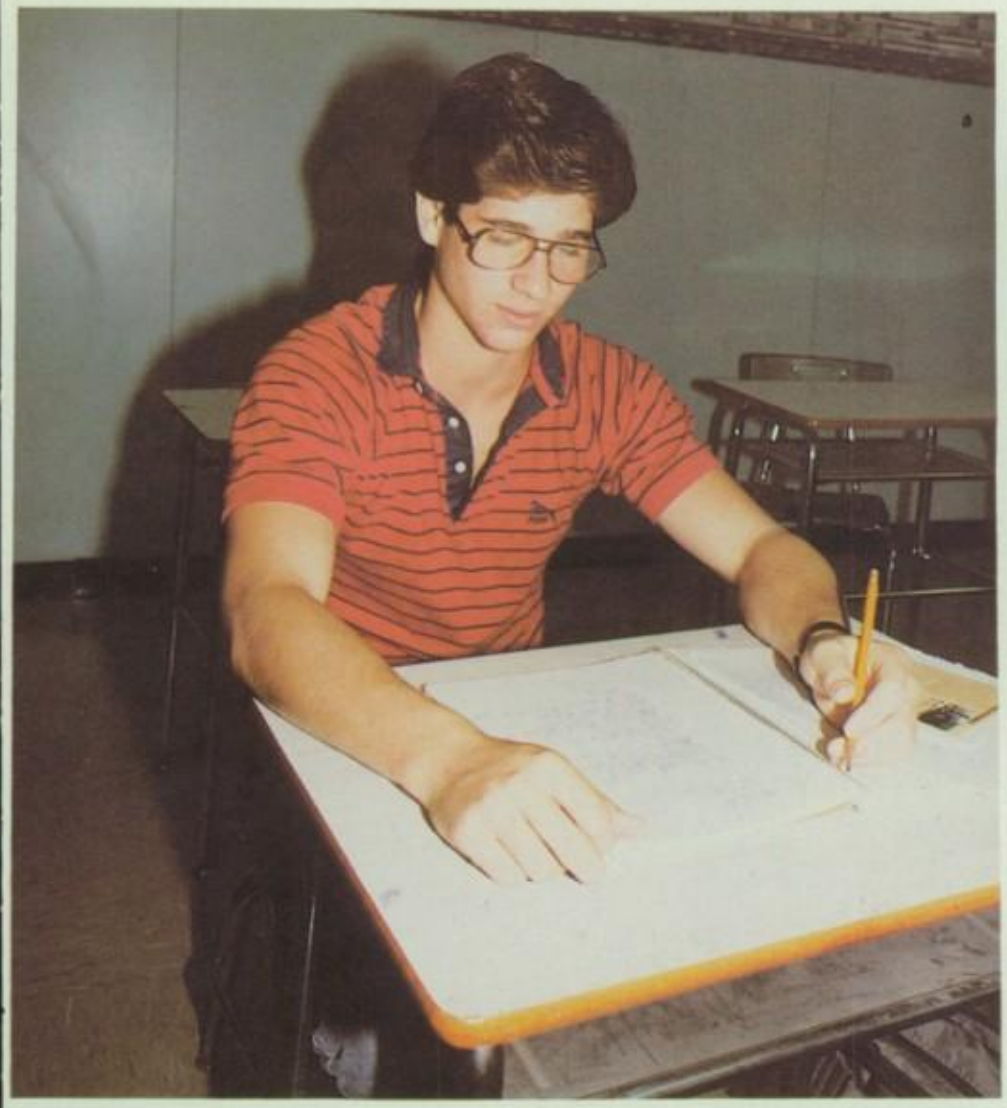
CARNEVALE

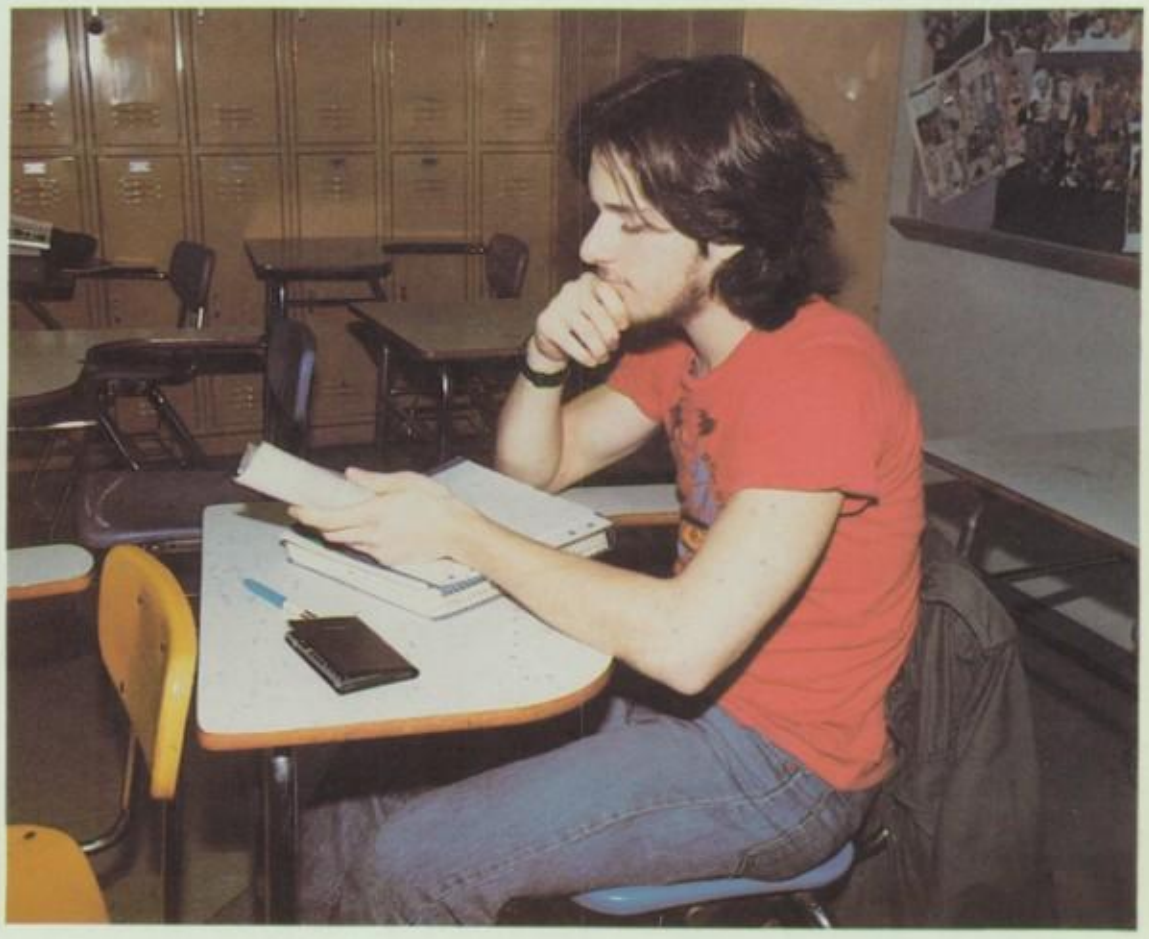


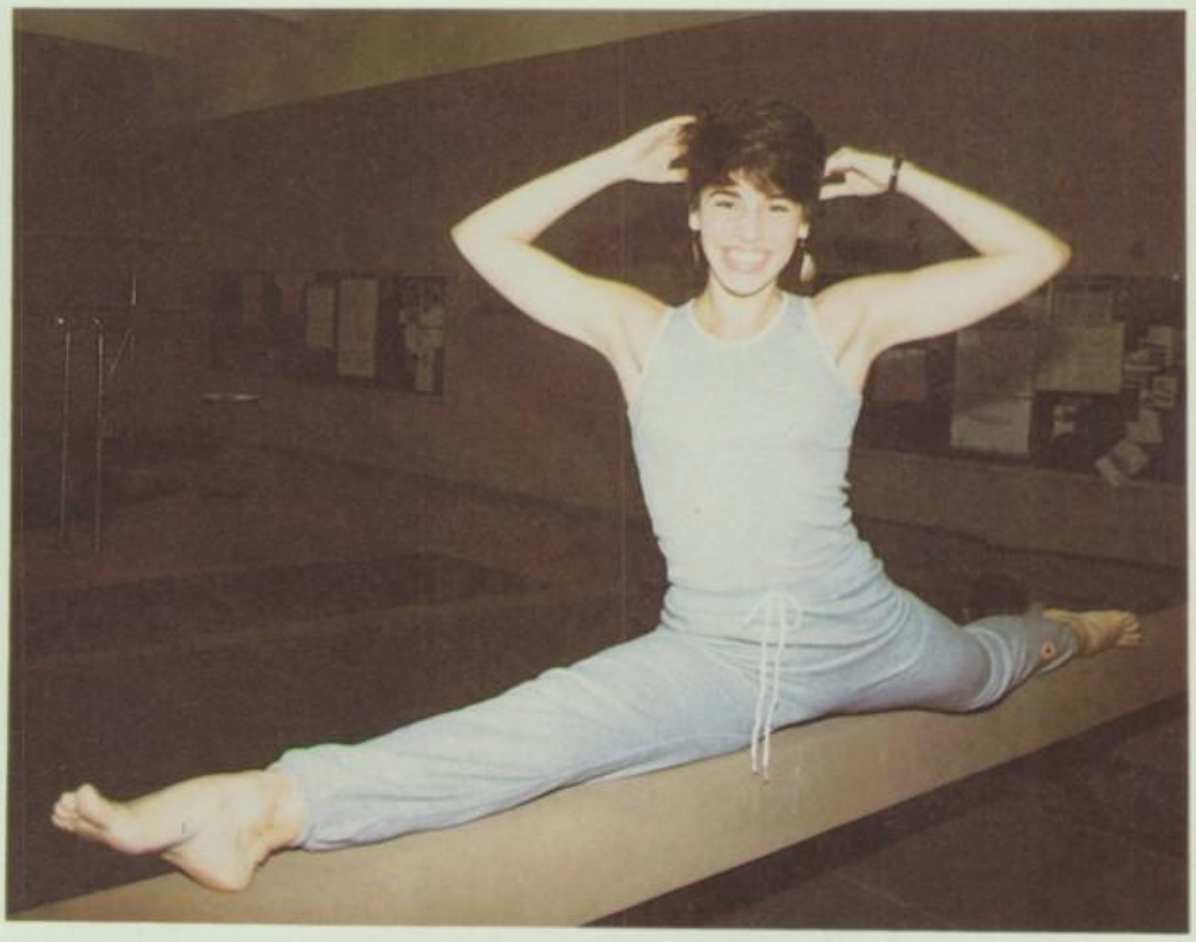


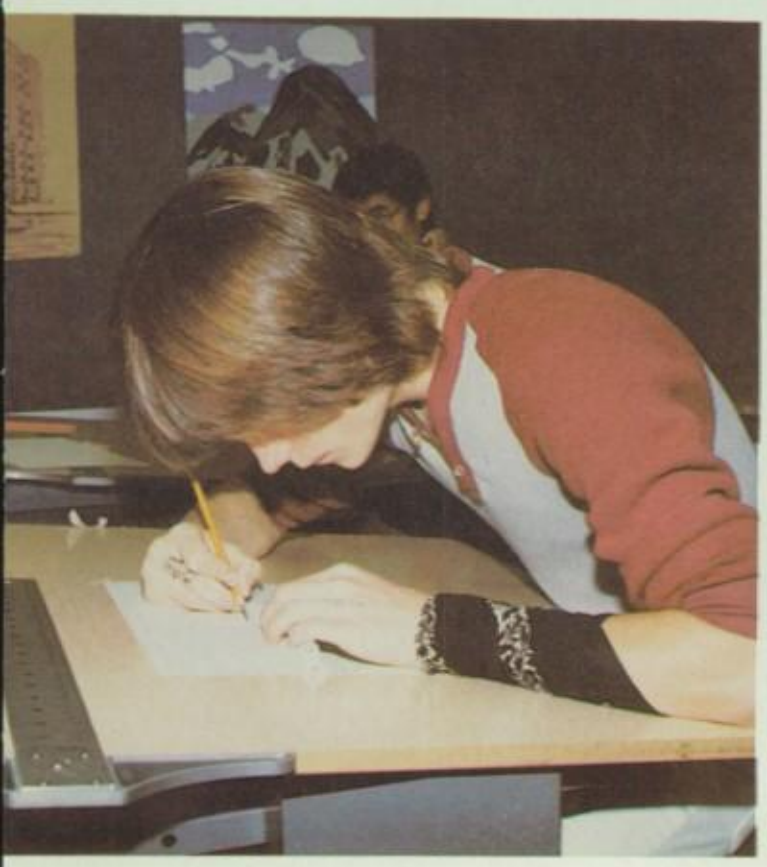












MATCHMAKER

"Matchmaker, Matchmaker, make me a match." This line was certainly brought to life when director Robert Ellman and a cast of about 35 performed Matchmaker in the Murrow Playhouse. This performance gave us the gaity and excitement that truly describes New York, then and now. The Matchmaker made a lasting impression on all of us.

PIPPIN

Lights, camera, action! Edward R. Murrow is proud to present Pippin — a story of a young prince in search of himself. Along his journey, he faces the horrors of war to the excitement of lust, similar to the night life of a Murrow student in the city. All in all, thanks to the creativity of director Scott Martin, Pippin turned out to be a huge success.

PLAY IT AGAIN, SAM

Play It Again, Sam is a whimsical Woody Allen story about a Manhattan man and his troubles with women. The only success he has is with failure. Eventually he gets the girl of his dreams, who also happens to be his best friend's wife. The play was directed by Mr. Robert Ellman and was a true success.

LITTLE MARY SUNSHINE

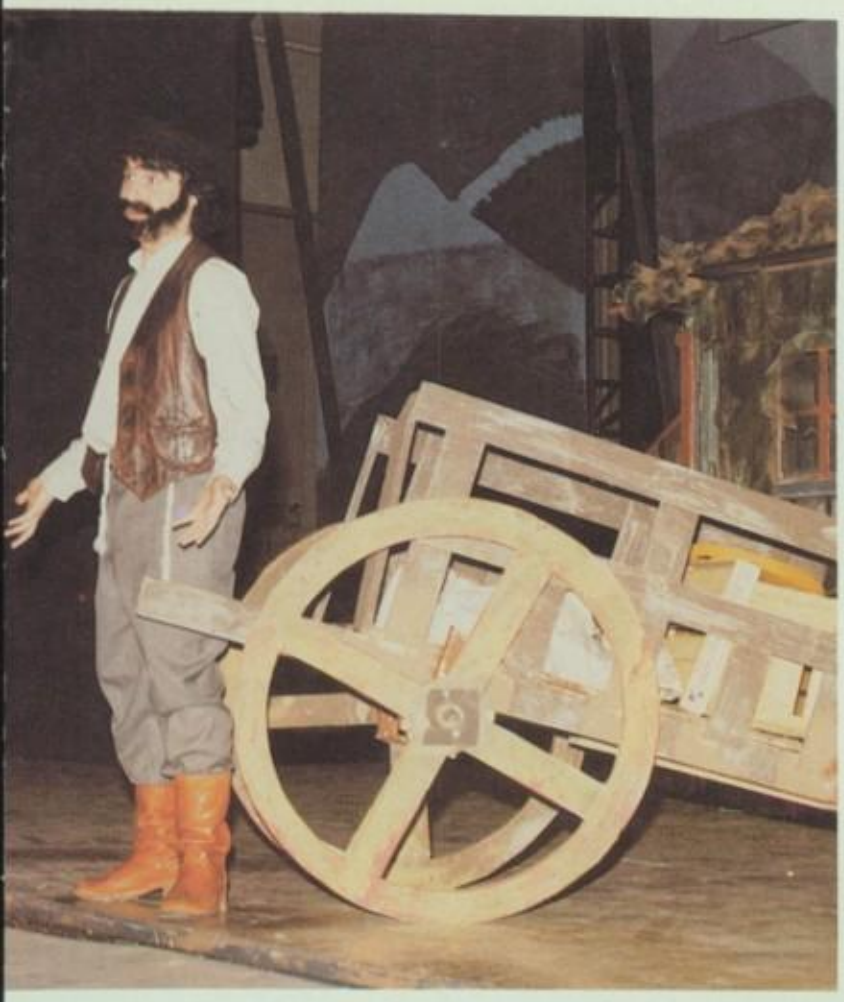
Murrow audiences were delighted by the melodramatic production, Little Mary Sunshine. The characters ranged from sugary Little Mary to the villainous Indian and the heroic forest rangers. The Murrow players were truly able to bring a little Sunshine to all who saw the play.

OLIVER

Oliver left everyone in the audience asking, "Can I have some more?". Oliver enacted the tale of the struggles of a young orphan boy in England, trying to find a better life. Through its fine acting, its musical score, and its elaborate scenery, Oliver achieved a presentation that was on a Broadway level.

STORY THEATER

A storybook comes alive! Story Theater, directed by Mr. Scott Martin, brings favorite fairy tales to life. Although we see our "childhood friends", we see them in a different light. They don't quite end up as they do in the originals. These comical situations, along with fine performances add up to a great deal of fun.



FIDDLER ON THE ROOF

Fiddler on the Roof is the story of the family's struggle to deal with the arrival of the 20th century. This Murrow production, directed by Scott Martin, touched all of our hearts because many of us are still adjusting to the challenges of our time.

YOU'RE A GOOD MAN CHARLIE BROWN

You're a Good Man Charlie Brown, depicts the life of a very insecure young boy, Charlie Brown. The play revolves around Charlie's absurd methods of trying to fit in, which only proves his insecurity. At certain times in everybody's life, like Charlie Brown's, people face insecurities, especially when living in a large city, such as the Big Apple. But - unlike Charlie Brown, we are able to cope with our insecurities, and we can "fit in" because our being Murrow students paved the way.

TEAHOUSE OF THE AUGUST MOON

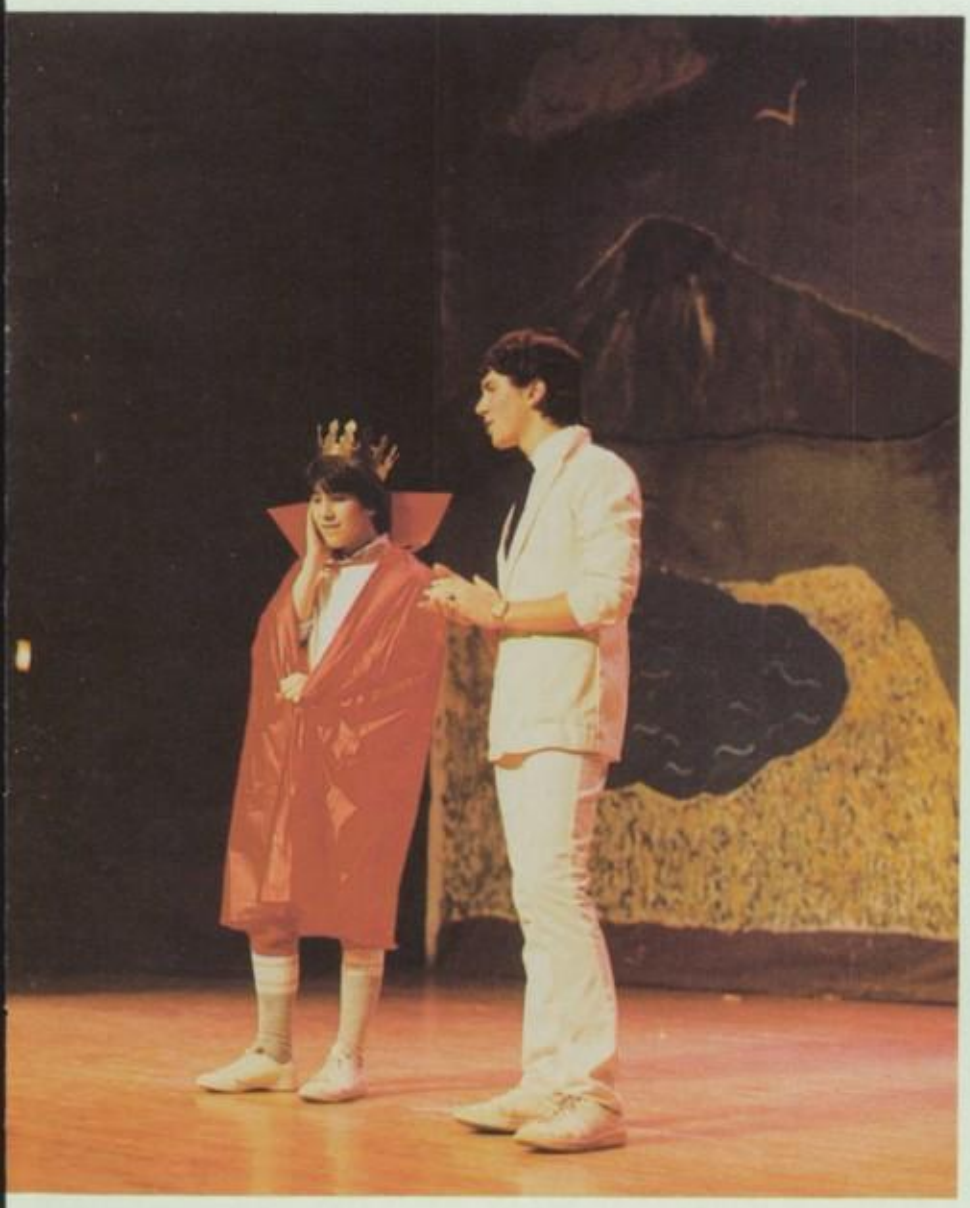
The western audience is transported from the busy streets of New York in the 80's to the quiet shores of post World War II Okinawa. Teahouse of the August Moon directed by Mr. Scott Martin, is the story of American soldiers trying to Americanize Okinawa. But soon, the tables turn and Okinawans "Japanize" the Americans. We learn much from this play about American and Japanese culture. It was a great performance and a lot of fun!

MY SISTER EILEEN

Why would two girls from a nice little town in the midwest come to this big city? My Sister Eileen, directed Monroe Makowsky, is a cute little story about two sisters who came to the Big Apple for the slice of the "good life". They were looking for success. The performance is comical as we see the antics of the girls striving to reach their goal. At the end everyone gave a big cheer because the delightful performance has a happy ending.

SING 84

Junior Sing 1984, for everyone involved, proved to be a memorable and worthwhile experience. We all worked together to develop a script, write songs, make up dances and create imaginative scenery. Although it was time consuming, one is able to overlook all the arguments and setbacks and only remember the fun and laughter we shared. These are memories we will cherish forever.



SAUL BRUCKNER, PRINCIPAL

"The Big Apple" is the most recent phrase used to describe our city, New York, New York. Still a center of finance, advertising, publishing, banking, fashion and communications, our city offers opportunity, adventure, challenge and variety.

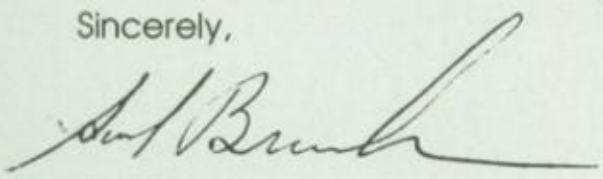
Like Brooklyn, the largest of the boroughs, we at Edward R. Murrow High School represent a slice of the "Big Apple." Like the "Big Apple" itself, our school represents the richness and diversity of life. Coming from more than one hundred and fifty public and parochial schools in this Borough of more than two million people, you brought to our school the uniqueness and diversity of communities such as Bensonhurst, Bay Ridge, Bedford Stuyvesant, Greenpoint, Coney Island, Manhattan Beach, Mill Basin, Canarsie, Flatbush, Bushwick, Sheepshead Bay, Brooklyn Heights, Midwood and Williamsburg.

Yet despite all of your diversity and uniquenessyou have worked together and enriched one another by your presence. You have demonstrated that a community of communities can work, study and play together in harmony and tranquility.

You have followed many different paths during your years at Edward R. Murrow High School. You have developed concentrations and strength in theatre and language, accounting and printing, social studies and science, mathematics and art, television and photography. Some of you completed four years of high school in three years; many of you completed five years of work in four years and some of you completed four years of work in five years. But despite different paths and different rates of progress, you have all "made it".

As you receive the diploma which attests to your success in a challenging course of study, you step out into a wider world. Many of you will go on to college in our city; many others of you will go on to college in cities and states outside of the Big Apple. But sooner or later most of you will return to test your ability in the "Big Apple". When you do, remember that you have succeeded in the slice of the apple which is Edward R. Murrow High School. And when you remember that recall the words to the song "New York, New York if you can make it here, you can make it anywhere." Congratulations and Best Wishes.

Sincerely,



Saul Bruckner

ADMINISTRATION

Most high schools have only two Assistant Principals. Edward R. Murrow is very fortunate to have three. Mr. Aaron Silverman, is the assistant principal of Administration. Mr. Silverman has many duties in our school. He is in charge of admissions, dealing with teachers, aides, secretaries, paraprofessionals, and security guards. We are very lucky to have him to inform us of school activities and wake us up with his morning announcement.

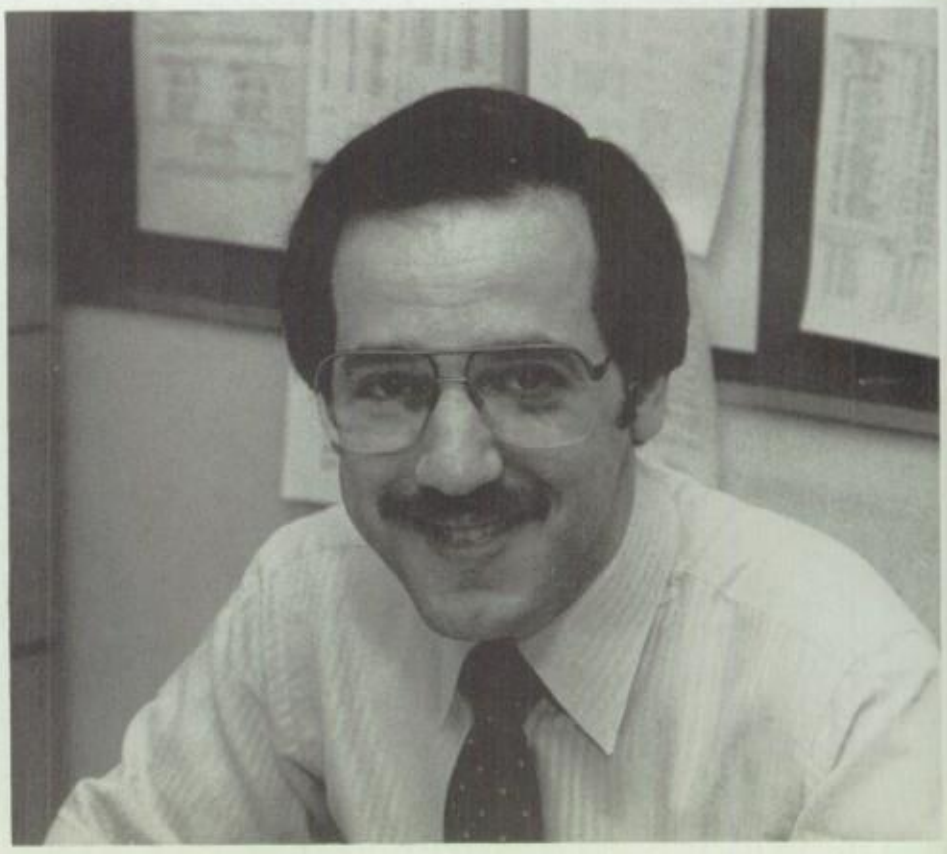
AARON SILVERMAN
ASSISTANT PRINCIPAL

Mrs. Rita Palermo is the Assistant Principal in charge of guidance. Her main concern is the welfare of the students. She supervises guidance counselors, guidance administration and programming. If you have a problem, Mrs. Palermo is always willing to help. We appreciate her help and guidance.

RITA PALERMO, ASSISTANT PRINCIPAL

Mr. Ron Weiss holds a rare position; he is the Assistant Principal of Administration in Charge of Computer/Programming. This means he must program the entire school-faculty and students alike-four times a year, with the aid of a computer and several skilled staffers. Without Mr. Weiss's expertise, it probably would still be Cycle II.

RONALD WEISS
ASSISTAT PRINCIPAL



GUIDANCE SUITE

Everybody at one time or another here at Murrow has received a program card with a "SEE GRADE ADVISOR" on it, or a mistake involving the courses which had originally been selected. The place where students go to alter their programs is the well-known Guidance Suite. The very helpful, friendly, and patient people known as grade-advisors are its denizens. This endangered species addresses the problems of program changing, which are so common at the beginning of each cycle. These grade-advisors congenially continue helping students; they truly deserve our blessing for a job well done.

ATTENDANCE OFFICE

With nearly three thousand students to track, the Attendance Office has its work cut out. Everyday, the efficient staff tallies the number of us who are here, on Home Instruction, Co-op, G.D., or wherever else we Murrowites may be-with possible exception of the storage room behind the stage. Since our school's funds are based on daily attendance figures, the Attendance Office serves a very important position in the scheme of things. Without their daily totals, who would know that you slept through A Band, ate lunch during E Band, and left before J?

COLLEGE OFFICE

The College Office's main task is really several. The staffers are in constant contact with practically every college and university in the country. They disseminate information to us, return applications and recommendations to our choices, and help us along the way. The College Office also keeps us informed about scholarships, achievement tests, placement tests; without them, applying to college would be a much more complicated, frustrating process.

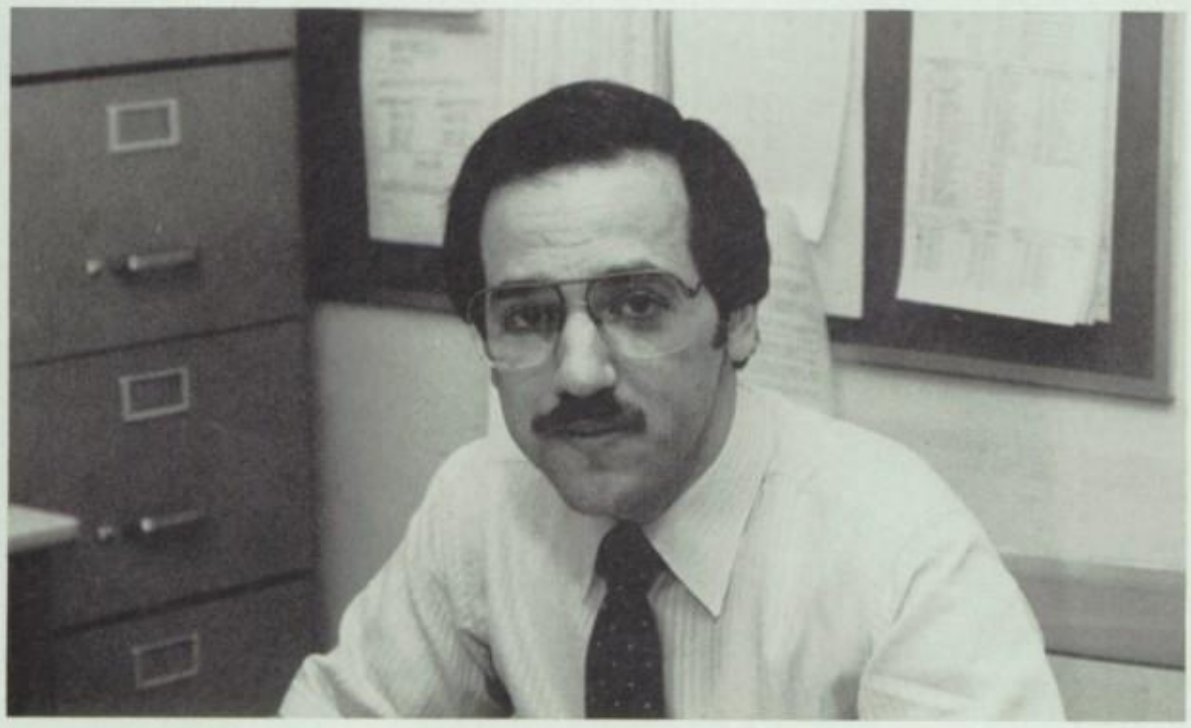
CUTTING OFFICE

One good way to get ahead in school is to go to class. Although this simple fact seems to elude some students, the Cutting Office is there to remind the recalcitrants that graduation and acceptance to college requires daily classroom attendance. Why else would teachers have to fuss with those unwieldy Attendance folders whose cards are always falling out? What other incentive could there be for getting up early enough for A and B Bands? The Cutting Office not only keeps track of our classroom score; it helps us develop a sense of responsibility to ourselves.

LIBRARY

If you ever found yourself in the position of having to do a research paper, a book report, finding an off-beat article on the love life of sea urchins, or discovering that the word "set" has eighty-five definitions, then you found yourself in the library. Libraries can be dry, dull, musty places; ours, thanks to the efficent and cheerful library staff, is quite pleasant. There are posters, charts, and glib directions everywhere. Our library is truly a multi-media center; students can read, listen to records and tapes, and view video cassettes, all of which make our library a very special place.

Ruth Berner - Harriet Dubofsky-William Zappone



Ronald Weiss

PROGRAM OFFICE

The Program Office is the place most of us never see, but all of us are affected by it, four times a year, for three or four years. That's quite a relationship with the tiny office we hurriedly bypass on our way to the College Office. Mr. Weiss and his staffers perform a vital service-getting us into the classes we need, when we need them. Of course, we always hope to be programmed for three O.PT.A.'s, but thanks to the efficient staff, it probably has never happened.

PARAPROFESSIONALS

Consistently, the Paraprofessionals at Murrow have been invaluable to teachers and students. Their many tasks are done efficiently, cheerfully; often they are asked at a moment's notice to prepare materials, deal with a tense classroom situation, or assist on some special project. They perform these jobs admirably well.

RECORD OFFICE

Just for the record, the Record Office continues to do a difficult, painstaking job with skill and efficiency. Most students seldom venture into its domain, but in the little room in the Guidance Suite are kept all the pertinent data that have accumulated on each of us during our stay at Murrow. In addition to record and data keeping, the Record Office deals with other situations: computer breakdowns; teachers' and grade-advisors' requests; college inquiries; finally, the Record Office staff completes and forwards our transcripts, which, for us at least, is its most important function.

SECRETARIES

Murrow's faithful secretaries are always hard at work, keeping the school's business functioning smoothly. They type, telephone, keep appointments, and insure that the school's dealings with the outside are conducted in a businesslike yet cordial way. The secretaries are found in all the offices of the school; each secretary makes an important contribution to the school's success.

CAFETERIA

It is said that an army travels on its stomach; in our case, Murrow students often need a nice hot meal or refreshing snack to keep them going in Trigonometry or Writer's Workshop. The Cafeteria staff are always there to serve the hungry and care for the needy; a good deal of good advice is often served up with the food. The Cafeteria staff is a vital part of our vitals.

CAREER EDUCATION

Headed by chairperson Mr. John Lachky, Career Education provides students with training in such diverse fields as Home Economics; Automotive, Photographic and Television Mechanics; and Business Education. In doing so, Career Education becomes the basis for choosing future careers for many Murrow students. In addition, it provides for a stimulating expansion of all students' horizons.

FINE ARTS

The Career Education Department is one of the few in Murrow to have two department heads. Along with Mr. John Lachky, Mr. Steven Kanfer directs the typing and Business Education sections. The combination of these two separate programs, is complementary to the student who learns while enriching and broadening their horizons. Together these courses will continue to teach students in a multitude of areas which will be useful throughout life. It can be looked upon as a cooperative collaboration of knowledge.

COMMUNICATION ARTS DEPARTMENT

Will any of us ever forget all of the dreaded four paragraph essays that we had to crank out cycle after cycle? These essays soon grew to be college level papers. The Communication Arts Department, with Stephen Silverman as chairperson, helped us develop our abilities in speech, reading, and writing. They gave us our first tastes of such literary greats as Geoffrey Chaucer and F. Scott Fitzgerald, essayists such as Thoreau and Pope, and great orators such as William Jennings Bryan and Winston Churchill.

FOREIGN LANGUAGE

Murrow's Foreign Language department offers an interesting range of languages. Students learn about the cultures of nations as well as their languages. Courses range from Hebrew and Latin to French and Spanish, German and Italian. Whether your attitude to taking a foreign language is "C'est la vie" or "Veni, vidi, vici", the Foreign Language department at Murrow will give you a great start. Avanti!

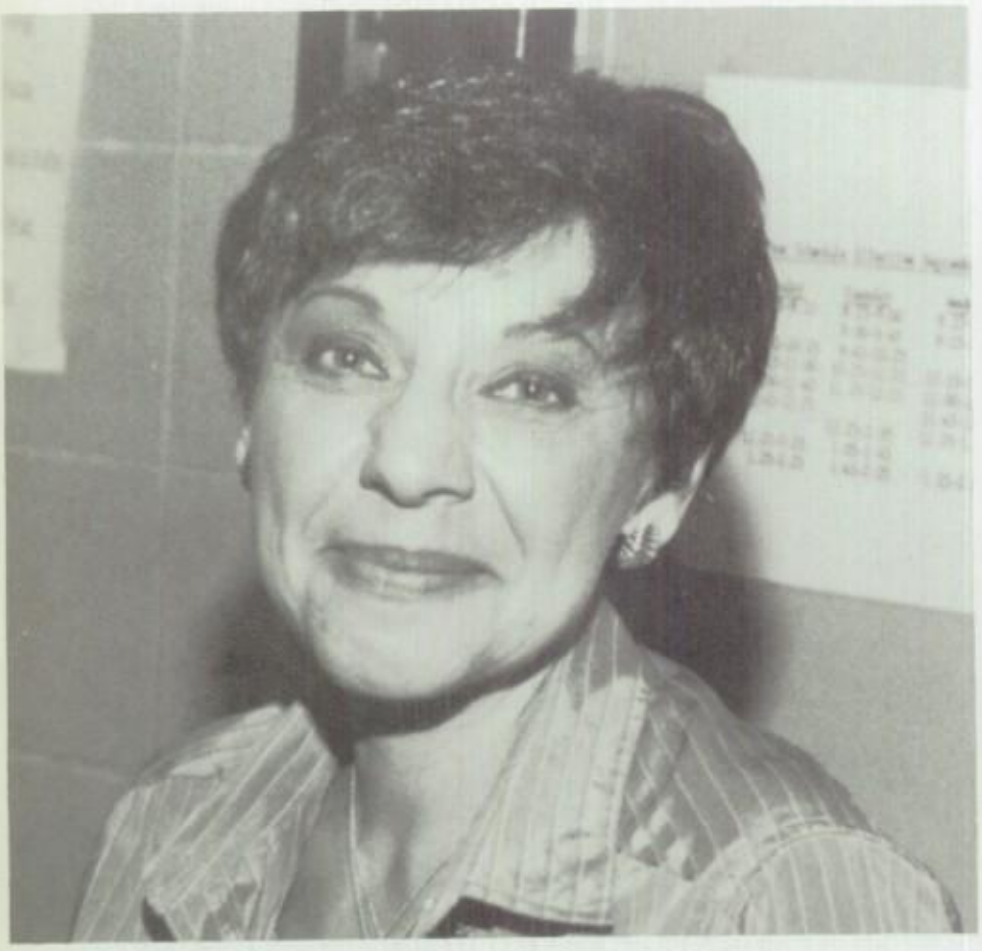
PHYSICAL EDUCATION



Florence Abramowitz, Chairperson

We may not have official teams but we sure get exercise! Murrow has a unique Physical Education department and offers more choices in physical activity than many other schools. With Mrs. Abromowitz, as chairperson, our gym activities range from football to modern dance. Even though a swimming pool is not part of our school, swimming was still an option in a special program. The PHYSICAL EDUCATION department certainly kept us "in shape".

SCIENCE

Randy Barbarash, Chairperson

The Science department of Edward R. Murrow has always been considered, naturally, a phenomenon. It is not every day that one finds a science department which offers all the courses under ROY G BIV and over the photosynthetic plants, from Horticulture to Physics. Between the courses offered and the staff itself, the science department does in fact supply the "missing link" of variety.

SOCIAL STUDIES

Attention: Future lawyers, psychologists and historians all owe accolades to the Social Studies department. Thanks to the diligent direction of chairperson Mary Butz, Murrow students have had a great deal of choices in the courses offered. They ranged from A.P. History to Concepts in Law. We are lucky to have had such a program.

SPECIAL EDUCATION

If there is one place in Murrow where equality is understood, it is the Special Education Department. Through the use of mainstreaming, students with disabilities are encouraged to take part in all opportunities offered to them at Murrow. The Special Education staff directs all their efforts to making school a comfortable and desirable place to be.

MUSIC

John Finelli, Chairperson

Just a little note to congratulate Mr. John Finelli on an excellent job of conducting a successful and varied program in music. The talented teachers in the music department led our oft-praised musicians through two concerts per year at Murrow and numerous performances at other schools. We learned new and interesting pieces as well as the history of music itself.

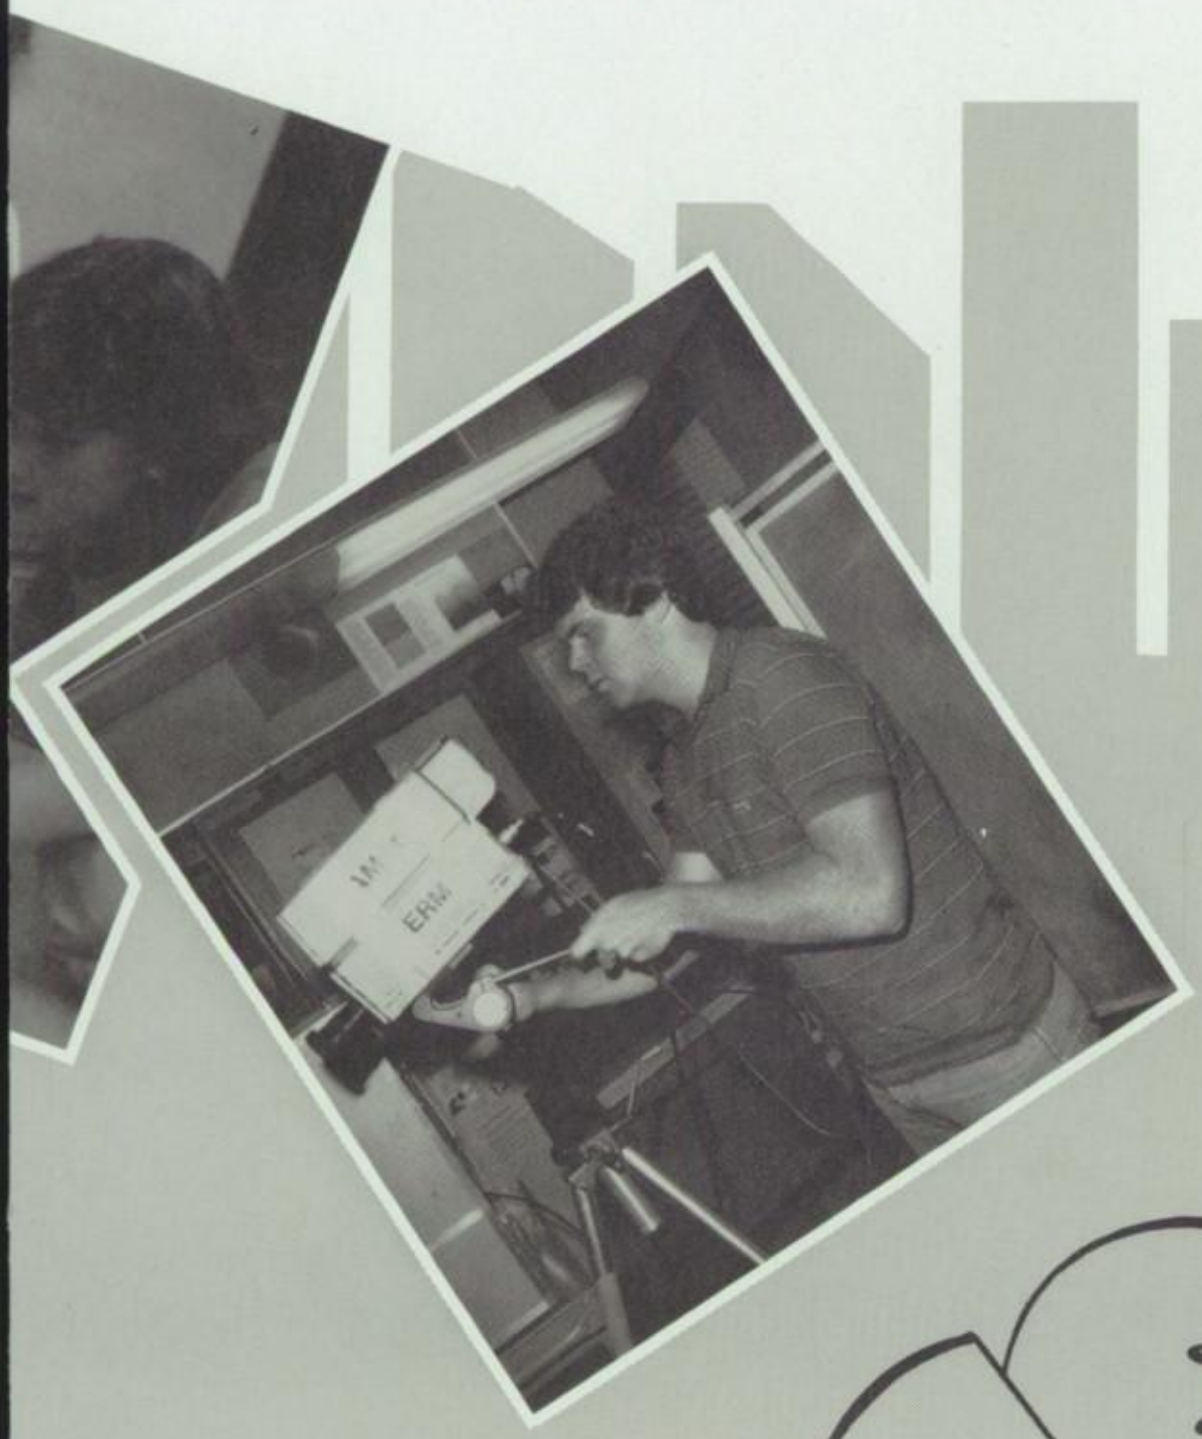
Organizations



THE LIBRARY SQUAD

Without the appreciated help of the Library Squad our library would not run smoothly. They help in organizing books, magazines and periodicals that are exchanged everyday by our students. They are a great help to us and to our school and we thank them for a job well done!

THE ASTRONOMY CLUB

The Astronomy club, under the instruction of Mr. Sam Storch, explored the celestial bodies above. Through the use of Murrow's unique Hubble planetarium, they learned to identify the stars, planets and occurrences within the skies.

LAW CLUB

The Law Club is responsible for the award-winning social studies paper, Legal Writes, as well as fielding the team for the annual mock trial competition. Headed by Ms. Maria Mikulski, the club discusses the law and engages in a variety of extracurricular activities.

T.E.R.M.

Television Edward R. Murrow, T.E.R.M. for short, is a four year program, training students in every aspect of the television world. Headed by Mr. John Lachky, students attain internships at various television stations, shoot commercials, film school productions and learn as well as enjoy behind the camera action.

ADVANCED BAND

The Advanced Band, supervised by Mr. John Finelli, and Mr. Phillip Barr, performs at various schools during the year. They learn different concepts in music and play pieces ranging from Gershwin to Chicago. The students learn a great deal as well as have a lot of fun. The graduates in the band leave school on a high note!

STUDENT ALLIANCE

The Student Alliance is Murrow's representative student government. The Student Alliance, and its president, Steven Nathanson, is given money every year to be dispersed among the different clubs and activities the school has to offer. The officers of the government meet with Mr. Bruckner and the Parents' Association on a regular basis to discuss current school issues.

GIRLS' CHORUS

Directed and accompanied by Ms. Blanche Goldstein, this dedicated troupe of performers sing their hearts out with everything from Broadway show tunes to classical arrangements producing truly harmonious and angelic sounds.

SPANISH CLUB

The Spanish Club examines the Latin flavor of Hispanic cultures and provides an outlet for various customs, attitudes, and beliefs Murrow's Hispanic population encompasses. Headed by Mrs. Costello, the Spanish Club is one of the school's most popular.

USHERS

Armed with flashlights, the Murrow Ushers guide spectators to their seats. Under the direction of Jackie Davis, youngsters exchange polite "Hello's" and "Good evening's" and escort the anxious to their seats.

THE LATIN CLUB

The Latin Club, under the supervision of Mrs. Weliky, embarks on many different adventures and projects. Every year they form a team for the citywide Latin competition known as Certamen. The Latin Club is chiefly responsible for the printing of Murrow's Latin newspaper Out of Print. The Latin Club will continue to go, see and conquer the future!

THE MURROW NETWORK

The Murrow Network, our official student newspaper, relays to us all that pertains to this school, its students and its surroundings. Led this year by faculty advisor Jeffrey Levitsky, the Network, with new and old members, continues to maintain high journalistic standards.

BIOCHEM LAB

The Bio-Chem Lab Squad has many important duties, the chief one being the preparation of laboratory equipment for all the science classes in the school. The members also clean up, which is very important- some remains of experiments might just decide to do mean, nasty things if they're not removed.

PSYCHOLOGY MAGAZINE

The Psychology Magazine staff, under the supervision of Mr. Bruce Ross, produces the annual issue, "Psyched out". The magazine is full of art, stories and articles hitting topics ranging from acrophobia to xenophobia.

NUCLEUS

As any science student at Murrow can say, "a nucleus is the center of an atom." In addition, if you ask what The Nucleus is, the answer would be a bit different. The Nucleus, our student science paper, with Mr. Mark Franklin as advisor, discusses scientific ideas both new and old. All this is within a quality newspaper which is interesting as well as educational.

ARCHIVE

The Archive is Murrow's history and political science magazine. Mr. Arnold Goldstein guides the staff as they make history, as well as report it. The Archive is informative, giving students something to think about in its quest for truth, justice, and the American way.

ASIAN CLUB

The Asian Club is headed for the first time by Mr. Michael Smith. Members of the club plan exciting trips ranging from amusement parks to Broadway shows. The club also gives each of its members an opportunity to keep in touch with Asian heritage, art, culture, and literature.

JUGGLING CLUB

The members of the Juggling Club, under the direction of Mrs. Charlotte Lefton, learn a variety of juggling techniques. Despite all the ups and downs, they always manage to enjoy themselves.

ACADEMIC OLYMPICS

Murrow's newly formed Academic Olympics team, under the supervision of Mrs. Phyllis Jaffe and Ms. Winifred Radigan, have discovered school spirit. These highly-motivated Murrow students compete against the teams of other high schools and try to earn contest points by answering challenging questions in the areas of Math and Science, Language Arts, History, and Omnibus. Murrow's Academic Olympians and Wally, the mascot, are all AOK and they leave us with a final piece of advice, "Hang Loose!"

MATH TEAM

Director Mr. Erik Marcus coaches this group of accomplished mathematicians in their successful forays against rival high schools.

LITERARY MAGAZINE

Murrow's Literary Magazine displays the compiled creative talents of some of Murrow's best writers and artists. The Literary Magazine also serves as a testing ground for new ideas and philosophies.

CHESS CLUB

The Murrow Chess Club, under the guidance of Mr. Elliot Weiss, has increased its membership dramatically since its inception four years ago. Members of the Club participate in tournaments, learn the intricacies of this historic game, and finally appreciate the sheer pleasure of uttering "Check-mate!"

FRENCH CLUB

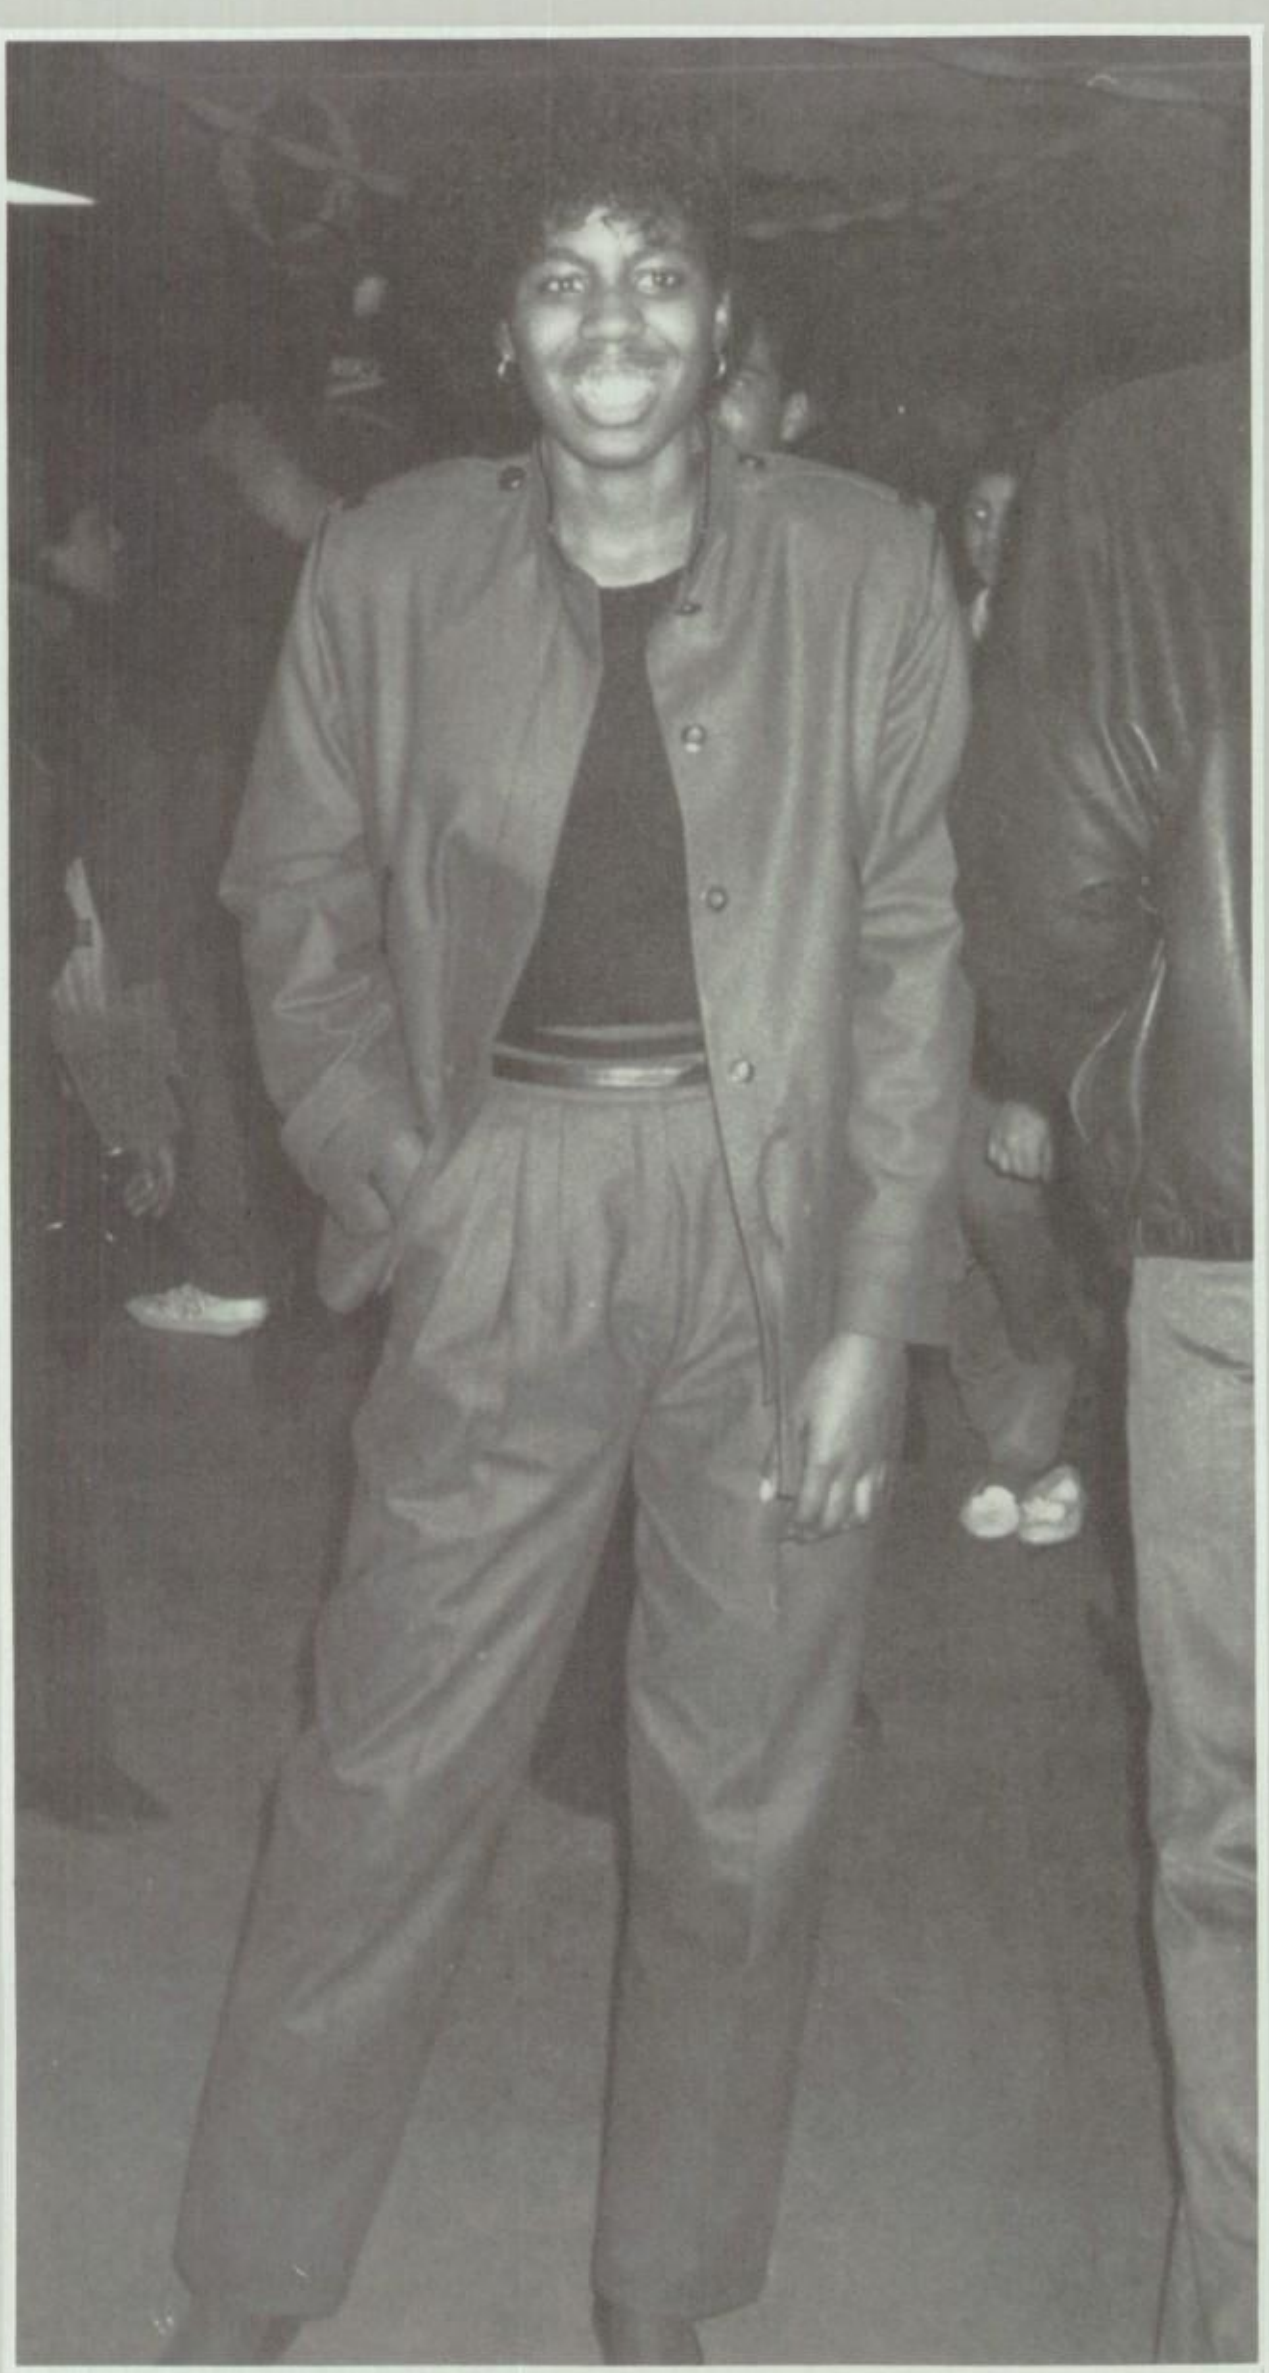
The French Club is devoted to disseminating the pleasant aspects of France's culture. Its members, under the auspices of Ms. Damsky, help achieve their goal by sponsoring food sales, visiting French restaurants, attending French theater and movie performances, and finally, providing opportunities to France itself.

STAGE CREW

Every year, Murrow produces two major plays in the auditorium, each requiring elaborate sets. The Stage Crew's nearly impossible task is to get the stage ready for these productions. Under the professional and talented eye of Mr. Carl Lefton, whose sets always amaze the audience, the Stage Crew constructs these sets, adjusts the lighting, rigs the sound system, and during performances, changes and moves whatever the script calls for. They are also responsible for props, storage, and dismantling of the sets. Without the Stage Crew, our productions would be missing a vital part of their success.

SENIOR COUNCIL

The Senior Council is elected by the seniors early in the fall. The members, under President Vanessa Hamilton and Vice-President Christine Kramer, make decisions pertaining to the Senior Class Trip, the Prom, other events such as Senior Hat Day, Senior Sunglass Day, Senior T-Shirt Day, and various cake sales to raise money for these activities. The Senior Council also acts as a liaison between the Seniors and the Administration.



Dear Class of 85,

I congratulate each one of you for earning your diploma. You have run a good race and have not only reached the finish line, but have gone far beyond it. Every one of you, as a member of the class of '85, has contributed a special gift. Therefore, never become jealous or envious of the next person because we are each unique individuals. Our experience at Edward R. Murrow has helped us to mature into adults equipped to take on college or the job market. Be proud of your accomplishments at Murrow and be confident that you are capable of taking on any challenge that may come your way. I encourage every one of you to pursue your goal with steadfast determination. I thank you for allowing me to have the privilege of being your senior class president.

Best Wishes

To The Class Of '85

BUTTERFLIES

The moon has risen

As the fog lifted

And a million starry eyes have seen my tears fall

Crystal drops, shed for the loss of something I never had

I loved you from the first

But as a friend

For you made me feel wonderful and happy

Then as my heart swelled deep inside with love for you —

When you turned towards me, and I saw the beauty of your Face, I could no longer breathe

And when I felt your touch, an indescribable thrill ran through me

To see you each morning with something new to live for

And to love for

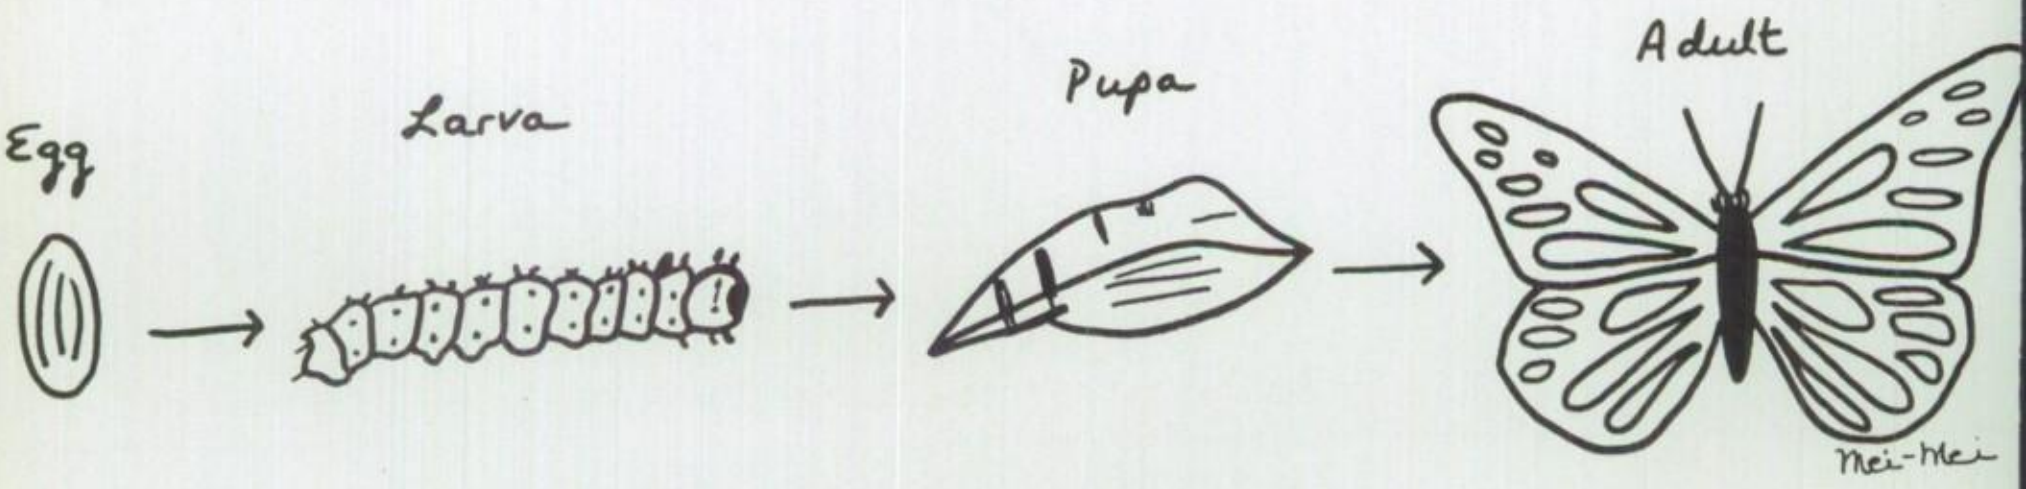
And so my feelings changed

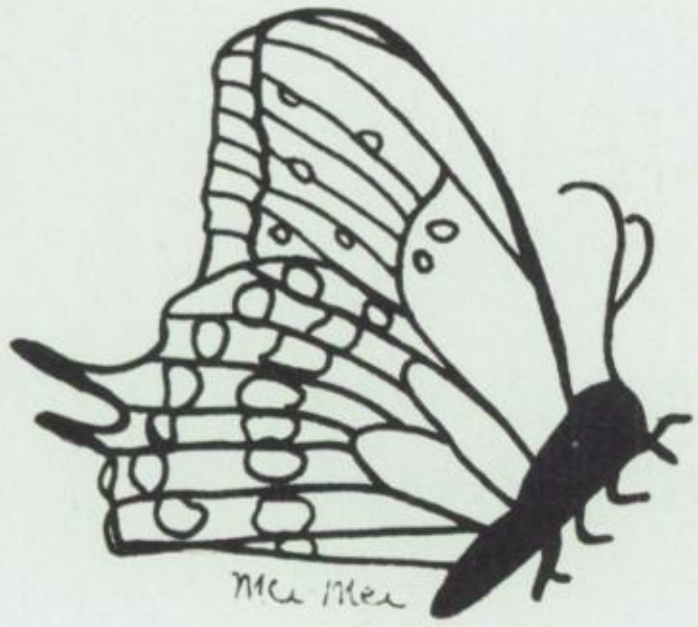
It began slowly

Like a caterpillar winding along a branch of a tree

And formed gradually

Like a cocoon being spun — protecting, comforting, soft





It was nurtured slowly

As if by the warm sun, soft rain and gentle wind

And when my feelings emerged they had completely changed

A metamorphosis had taken place

No longer were they plain and nondescript

Like that caterpillar, slowly winding

Now they were wild, beautiful and full of colors

And like a butterfly first trying its wings, they took flight

And suddenly, I could no longer control them

But like that butterfly, they couldn't be caught

For to have them would be to hurt them

And I couldn't do that

No more than I could hurt you

I may have you briefly

Like the sight of a butterfly alighting on a flower

But to have you always is not meant to be

So I will have to be content with the butterflies in summer

And thoughts of you.

--- Sharon Sorrentino

RAINBOW TEARS

As June cries on her children below,
I look up and see a shooting star-
A night so clear
So clear my thoughts can reach eternity
I smile,
Her tears don't chill me,
They comfort me.
I am not alone
Someone else is crying -having to say goodbye
I never dreamed happiness could smell so sweet,
And taste so bitter
Goodbye my friend-
We shall meet again-
And until we do,
May June's showers cleanse your soul and may her
Gentle sobbing comfort your heart.

THE DAY BEFORE ENTERING MURROW

Dear Diary,

I'm never going to make it. I'm so scared. I enter HIGH SCHOOL tomorrow. I don't know what to wear, how to act, and worst of all, I have no idea where my SCS is. To be honest, I have no idea what an 'SCS' is. Wish me luck, here I go . . .

Kimmy Siegel

FRESHMAN YEAR

Dear Diary,

Freshman Year was a humilitating year! I spent the first day at Murrow trying to find the 4th floor gym. Later I found out that in order to get to the 4th floor gym, you have to go to the 3rd floor and them go through the locker room to get back upstairs to the 4th floor gym. Whoever built this school must have been insane! Well, that wasn't the worst of it, it gets pretty bad. I forgot that B-Band doesn't meet on Mondays. I went to my B-Band class that day and sat for twenty minutes in a Junior A.P. English class when I finally realized that there was no B-Band that day. Oops! God, how embarassing. There is an elevator in Murrow but you need a pass in order to use it — I gues I'll be using the stairs for the next four years. The guards said no eating upstairs, so I spend my Opta Bands eating on the first floor. I see kids sneaking outside but according to the E.R. Murrow student handbook — no students are to leave the building at any time. I'll never leave the building, it's against the rules. I wish I had a locker! I was assigned a locker but two days after I slapped a lock on it, I found a note taped to it. All it said was "I want this locker, so it's mine now — Signed, a senior". Now I carry my coat around everywhere I go. This coat is like a scarlet letter, it stands for — "Freshman". I bought lots of Murrow clothing — T-shirts, sweats, and even socks. How cool! I hope next year will be better!

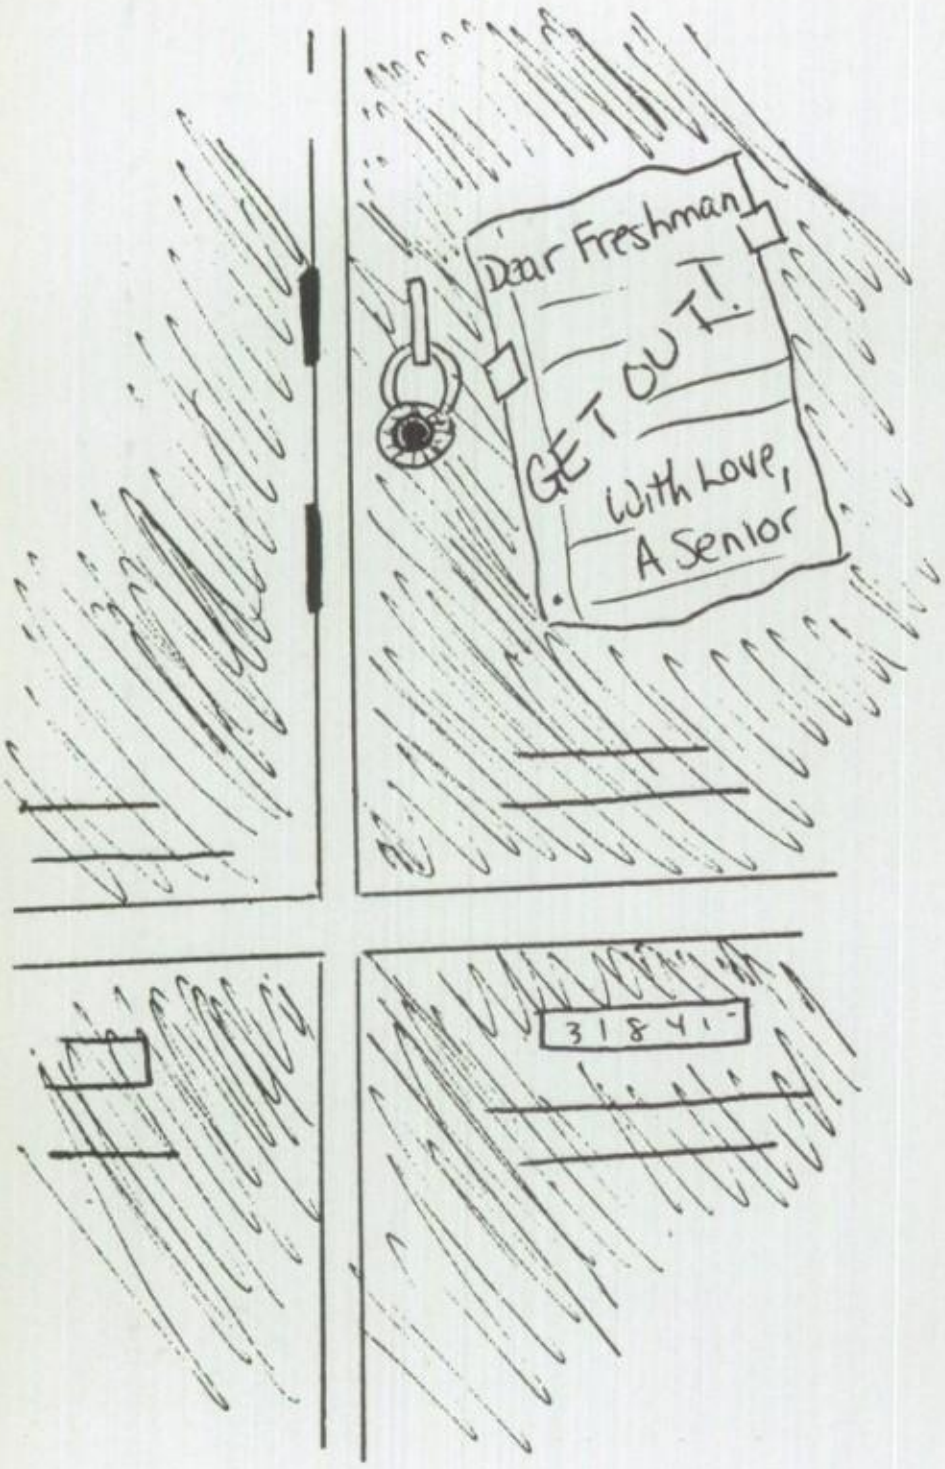
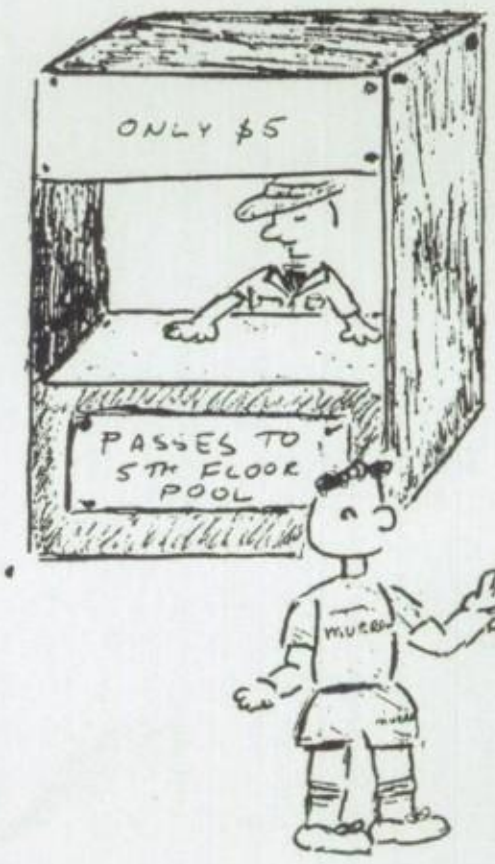
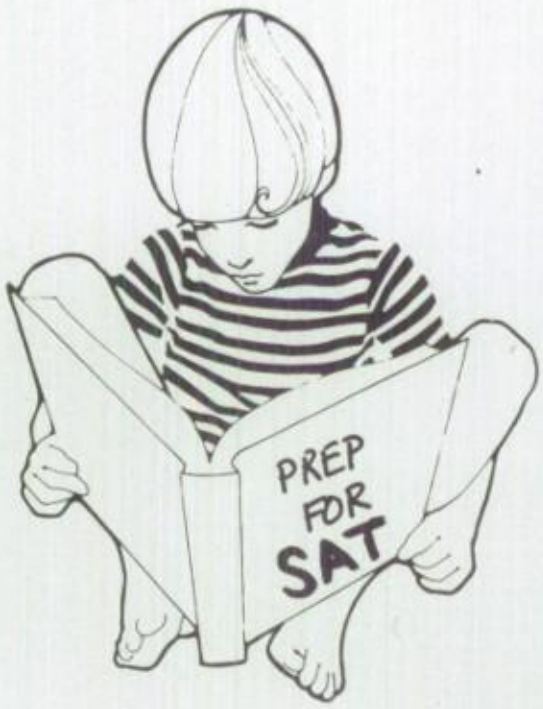
SOPHOMORE YEAR

Dear Diary,

Sophomore Year was an okay year. I learned a lot about the school. First of all . . . The place to hang out is Caraville and the place to get "munchies" is the bagel store. Yes, I went outside. I was scared at first. Every time I saw a cop on Avenue M, I ran the oppositve way! I got out of the school by squeezing through the driveway gates on Chestnut Avenue! What a way to escape! I found out that you can get food upstairs by using the staircase by the S.A. Store. I keep my coat in my gym locker. I wouldn't want anyone to think I was a freshman! I take the elevator often — going from the music hall to room 448 in three minutes is impossible. The elevator is a must! I took a couple of MILE's this year— what a lot of work!! I can't wait for Junior Year!







"... And I didn't even know that Murrow had a pool."

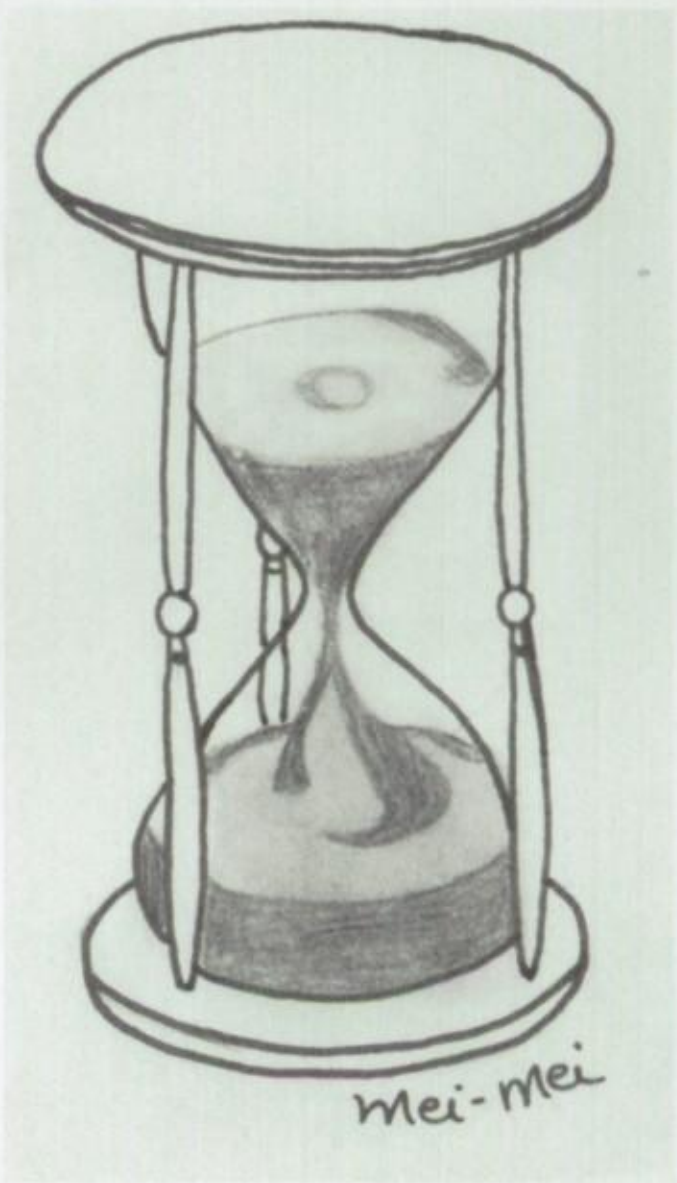
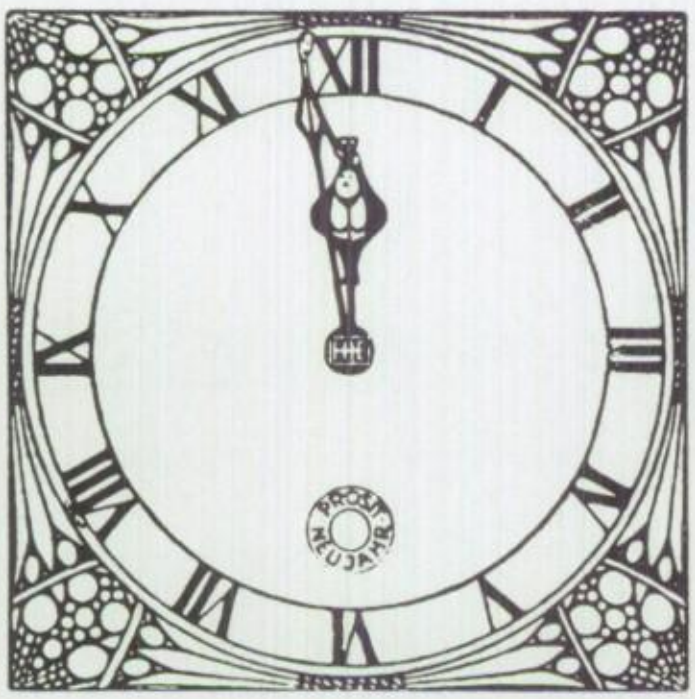
TIME'S EYES

The steps creek softly
As I put my hand on the rail.
I yearn to see the part of me
My little boy, my male.
I open the door and what do I see
The outline of my son-
The only extension of me
It seems so long,
Playing in the sand,
Laughing, kissing, holding my hand,
A tear rolls my cheek
And a sob engulfs my heart
Where has the time gone-
We drifted so far apart
And ever so slightly,
You stir in your sleep
I close the door gently and turning,
Softly, I weep

Cindy Cabeza





Room open room,
Stacked like used cardboard boxes.
Unsteady and weak,
Are the squalid tenement buildings.
Garbage piled up along narrow cobblestone footpaths-a playground for children.
Large ugly rats — their discontented playthings.
And the rich live comfortably in their secluded, sheltered world of fine crystal and fur wraps.
And I, the lowly factory worker, work with mere cracks of light peering through vents in the clay wall.
Who is this all powerful, larger that life man called the boss?

A myth,
This "golden land of opportunities"
This muddy waste of disappointment
Never hoping for change, moving along much like the flow of electrons through a wire
Not knowing my destination, but understanding it is too dangerous to stop,
I move for fear of replacement
And who is to say that a treacherous cannibal machine will not devour me?
I watch my world slowly crumble like perishing black carbon.
It aches to adhere to something so that it may remain whole.

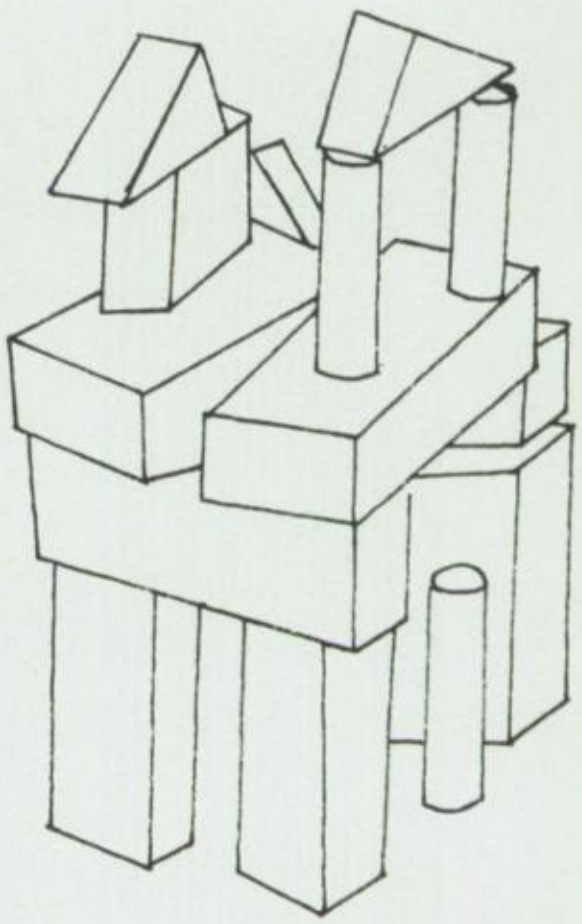
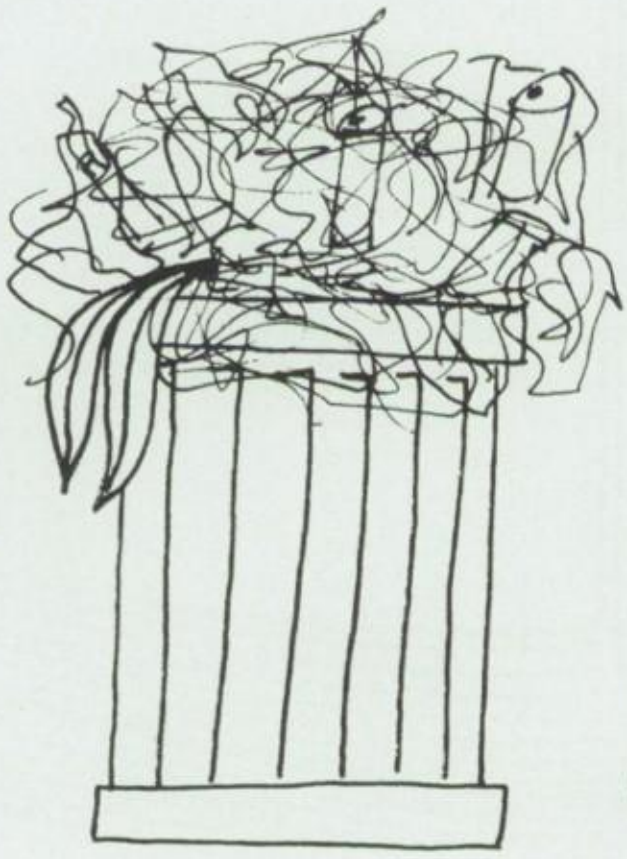
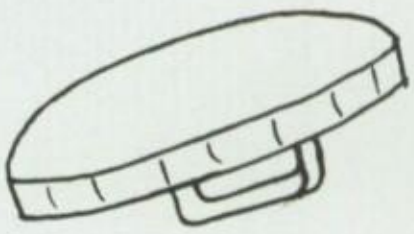
— Stacy Glass







JUNIOR YEAR

Dear Diary,

Why did I wish Junior Year upon myself? SAT's, WORK, SEX ED, TRIG — YUCK!! What is an Opta? What do my friends look like? MILE's are murder — four per cycle! I burned my Murrow clothing — did I actually purchase that junk? I started a Monarch Notes collection. I never read the books, just glance over the notes before tests — quote tests are murder! I spend most of the day screaming to those who have Optas — "Is anyone going to the bagel store?" I can't think about college now but my parents made me go to College Night. I spent the whole night looking for gorgeous college representatives. Princeton had a stunning rep!! I've begun to leave school on my Lab-Optas through the Chestnut Avenue door. I never take the stairs because my Jansport weighs more than I do. Senior Year, here I come!!

SENIOR YEAR

Dear Diary,

Senior Year at Murrow — what an experience! Getting here was worth all the humiliation and frustration. I have 3½ Optas and J-Band dismissal. Colleges are actually accepting me. My Senior pictures came out disgusting! Hey, is anyone going to the prom or are we just going to spend prom night at Caraville — NO WAY! I stole a locker from a freshman! I spend one of my Opta-Bands sitting in the hall eating a bagel, sipping my Coke and listening to my walkman. My other 2½ Optas are spent at, of course, Caraville. I must have gained thirty pounds this year. I had the privilege of taking Tennis (For Seniors Only) this year. I attended Senior meetings where we all screamed, tried to do a "wave" and of course, we never heard Mr. Bruckner because he didn't use a microphone! I finally realized that another name for the College Office is "The ZOO"! I paid my Senior trip money — Quebec, here we come! I sold Senior Chocolates to help my parents out with the cost of the trip and Senior Dues. I spent most of the day yelling — "SEND A SENIOR TO CANADA — BUY CANDY!" I made 100 bucks selling pool passes. I lived for the days declared just for Seniors — Senior Hat Day, Senior Punk Day, Senior Sunglasses Day, and of course, SENIOR CUT DAY! — And of course, we won Sing! SENIOR VICTORY 1985!!

This is the end! No more Murrow! The people in the Class of '85 have made my years at Murrow an experience — a great one! WE DID IT!!

GRADUATION

Dear Diary,

What can I say . . . Here I am in cap and gown. When I walk across the stage to receive my (fake) diploma — it means leaving the security of the colorful walls of Murrow and being sent out into the real world — a world where there are no morning announcements and very few friendly smiles like the ones we received from Mr. Bruckner.

These diaries were compiled by Ellen Risa Fishman

To Fear the Unexpected

When I sleep
She speaks with door slams
and stair squeaks.
If it's dark
her slightest whisper can transform an ordinary room
into a ghoul's paradise.

Beside me
when I'm alone
voicing rings
on the telephone
she is there,
laughing, gawking,
waiting for a moment
to arise,
which she will gladly
take and make me feel surprise.
Dread fills a rattle,
this noise I do not know,
I call out "Who is it?"
yet again my fear shows.

Every bush shakes
with sounds of swimming snakes,
swamp waters ripple
with the resonance of reptiles,
revolving across sand,
on the pier, then back against the bank.
All I wanted was to Fish;
But it's too early for me.
This morning
did not grant my wish.

Grayson Ross Dantzic

And the Angels Wear Black

It's a tough world
Full of black goblins that dance around you in circles
A child's game of ring-a-round the rosie turns into a death ritual
Go ahead,
Try to break through the long chains of hairy arms
But they hold you back with tremendous force
Harsh laughter empties out into the night
Where does it come from?
But the goblins are silent, wearing only ugly
smirks on their crooked faces
And a question repeats in your mind:
In this hell?

No, it's just a tough world
Insensitive people walk alone in crowds
Little children wear gaunt faces
Bleak silence sticks in the air like fog
It's just a tough world.

Stacy Glass

Typically Him .....

If you're sitting around with nothing to do
You think about him
Does he think about you?

All the great things you've done
All the fun that you've had
But remember all the other things
Don't they make you mad?

He has hurt you a lot, he may not confess
But isn't your mind in a great big mess?

Confusion has deepened
Everything is in your mind
Is he really the one you wanted to find?

You couldn't have helped it from the start Because he is the one who will stay in your heart.

— Alyssa Ann Milman

As I lie motionless in my bed- I think of the various things that fill my head. One thought that keeps coming to mind as we become closer to the end of our high school years is where we will be ten or twenty years from now. This thought is arousing great curiosity within myself; I find myself thinking about it day in and day out. I stop and think who will be where and what will they be doing.

Will they be the famous actresses they have so aspired to be?

Will she be living in a beautiful house in the suburbs with her husband, two kids, and maybe a dog as she so frequently dreamed of?

Will he be a famous film director and own all the gummy bear factories in the world?

Will she take after her father and become a great lawyer?

Will he ever find the "perfect girl"?

Will she be married to her high school sweetheart and live happily ever after?

Will they have been married by now, divorced, and then married again?

Will she be a famous gymnast?

Will she ever find that guy in the red Porsche?

Will she be a highly acclaimed surgeon?

Will she ever stop galavanting between guys and finally pick the right guy and settle down?

Who knows where our lives will be directed?-Who knows what we can accomplish?- Will our paths ever cross again in later life? Will we actually see what each other has accomplished? If we can keep the bonds of our friendship together, we can reach our highest goals. We will always have the memories of our years at Murrow. The times we've shared both good and bad-the laughter, the tears; we were always there for each other. Our memories must always be cherished-they can bring us strength at times when strength is needed. They can make us smile when a smile seems so distant. If we can always remember our past it will bring happiness to our future-

TOGETHER WE CAN CONQUER THE WORLD!!!

THE SACRIFICE

I often wonder how it would be,
If everyone could live life casually,
No hustles, no bustles, no meddling around,
Just taking life as it comes,
Mellow-bound.
In this world there would be no money,
and with it all the headaches and troubles would flow away thickly as honey.
No competition,
Clear peace of mind.
No cheating, equality, everybody would be kind.
Although this is a fantasy and is impossible to make true,
It is a worthy sacrifice to leave reality for a time and upon returning become blue.

Sam Friedman

ALIZA AND SAM

As pure as dove white,
As beautiful as the dove's song,
As graceful as a dove's flight,
It goes melifluously along.

Though patches of rain inevitably fall,
The sun keeps on shining through it all.
The sun breaks through that mist and haze,
And bathes us in sparkling rays.

Each ray of sun contains numberous colors,
All of which are bright and warm as the others,
This emotional rainbow eventually conquers all,
And thus love has risen beautifully tall.

Sam Friedman

THE COURSE NOT TAKEN

Two classes looking just as good
And sorry I could not take both
And be one student, long I stood
And did as much as one "I" could
To benefit my own-self-growth.

I shall be telling this with a sigh
Someday time and time again
Two courses written on a page and I-
I took the best one I could find
Perhaps I should have changed my mind

(With Apologies To Robert Frost)

Grayson Ross Dantzic

Beacon of the night,

Standing tall and bright,

Gently guiding

Our ships to port;

At times we wander and go astray,

All too often we lose our way,

But there You are,

To welcome us home again.

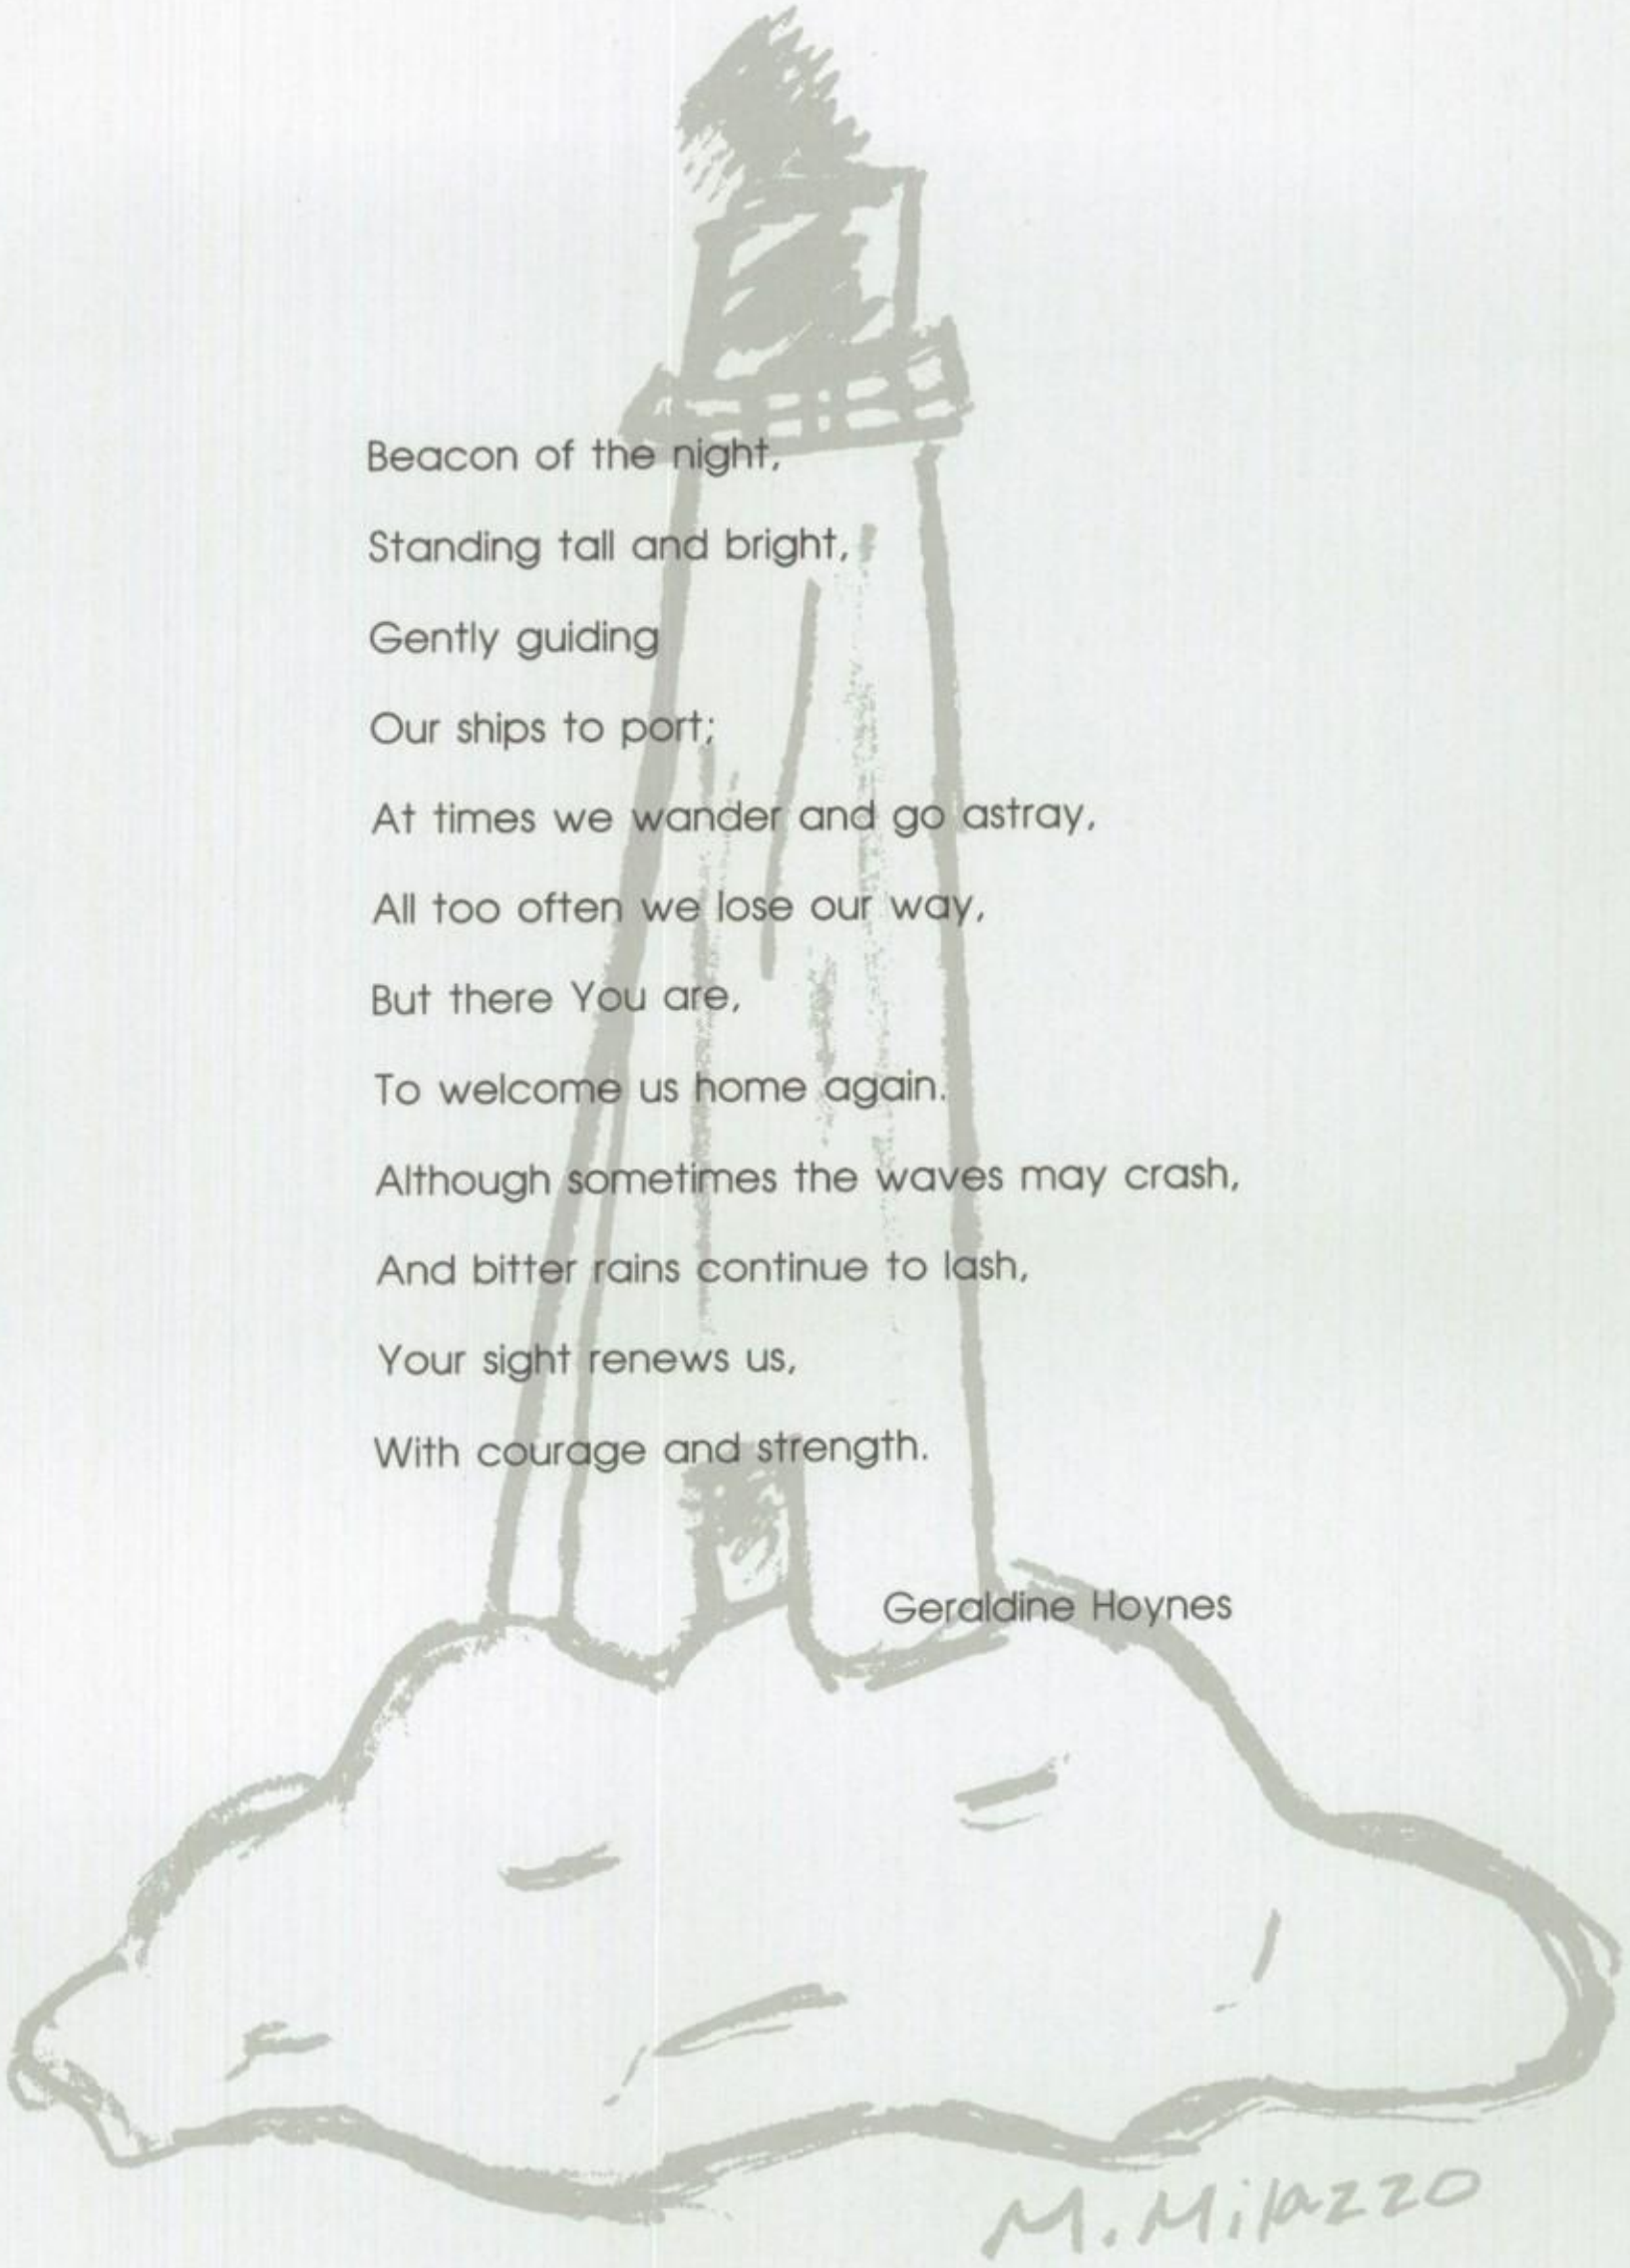
Although sometimes the waves may crash,

And bitter rains continue to lash,

Your sight renews us,

With courage and strength.

Geraldine Hoynes



RIPPLES

Ripples upon ripples of splashing white foam
The bubbly froth is heard crashing against the desolate beach;
An unseen wave rolls faster, winding itself into a tight coil.
Finally it swells too much and grand white horses ride high atop the
twisting and angry waters.
They flail at the blue below
Trying valiantly to survive
But as they reach the yellow sand
they are swept away.
The choppy billows rush backwards
again
Leaving behind only the ivory
manes, that are soon gone forever.

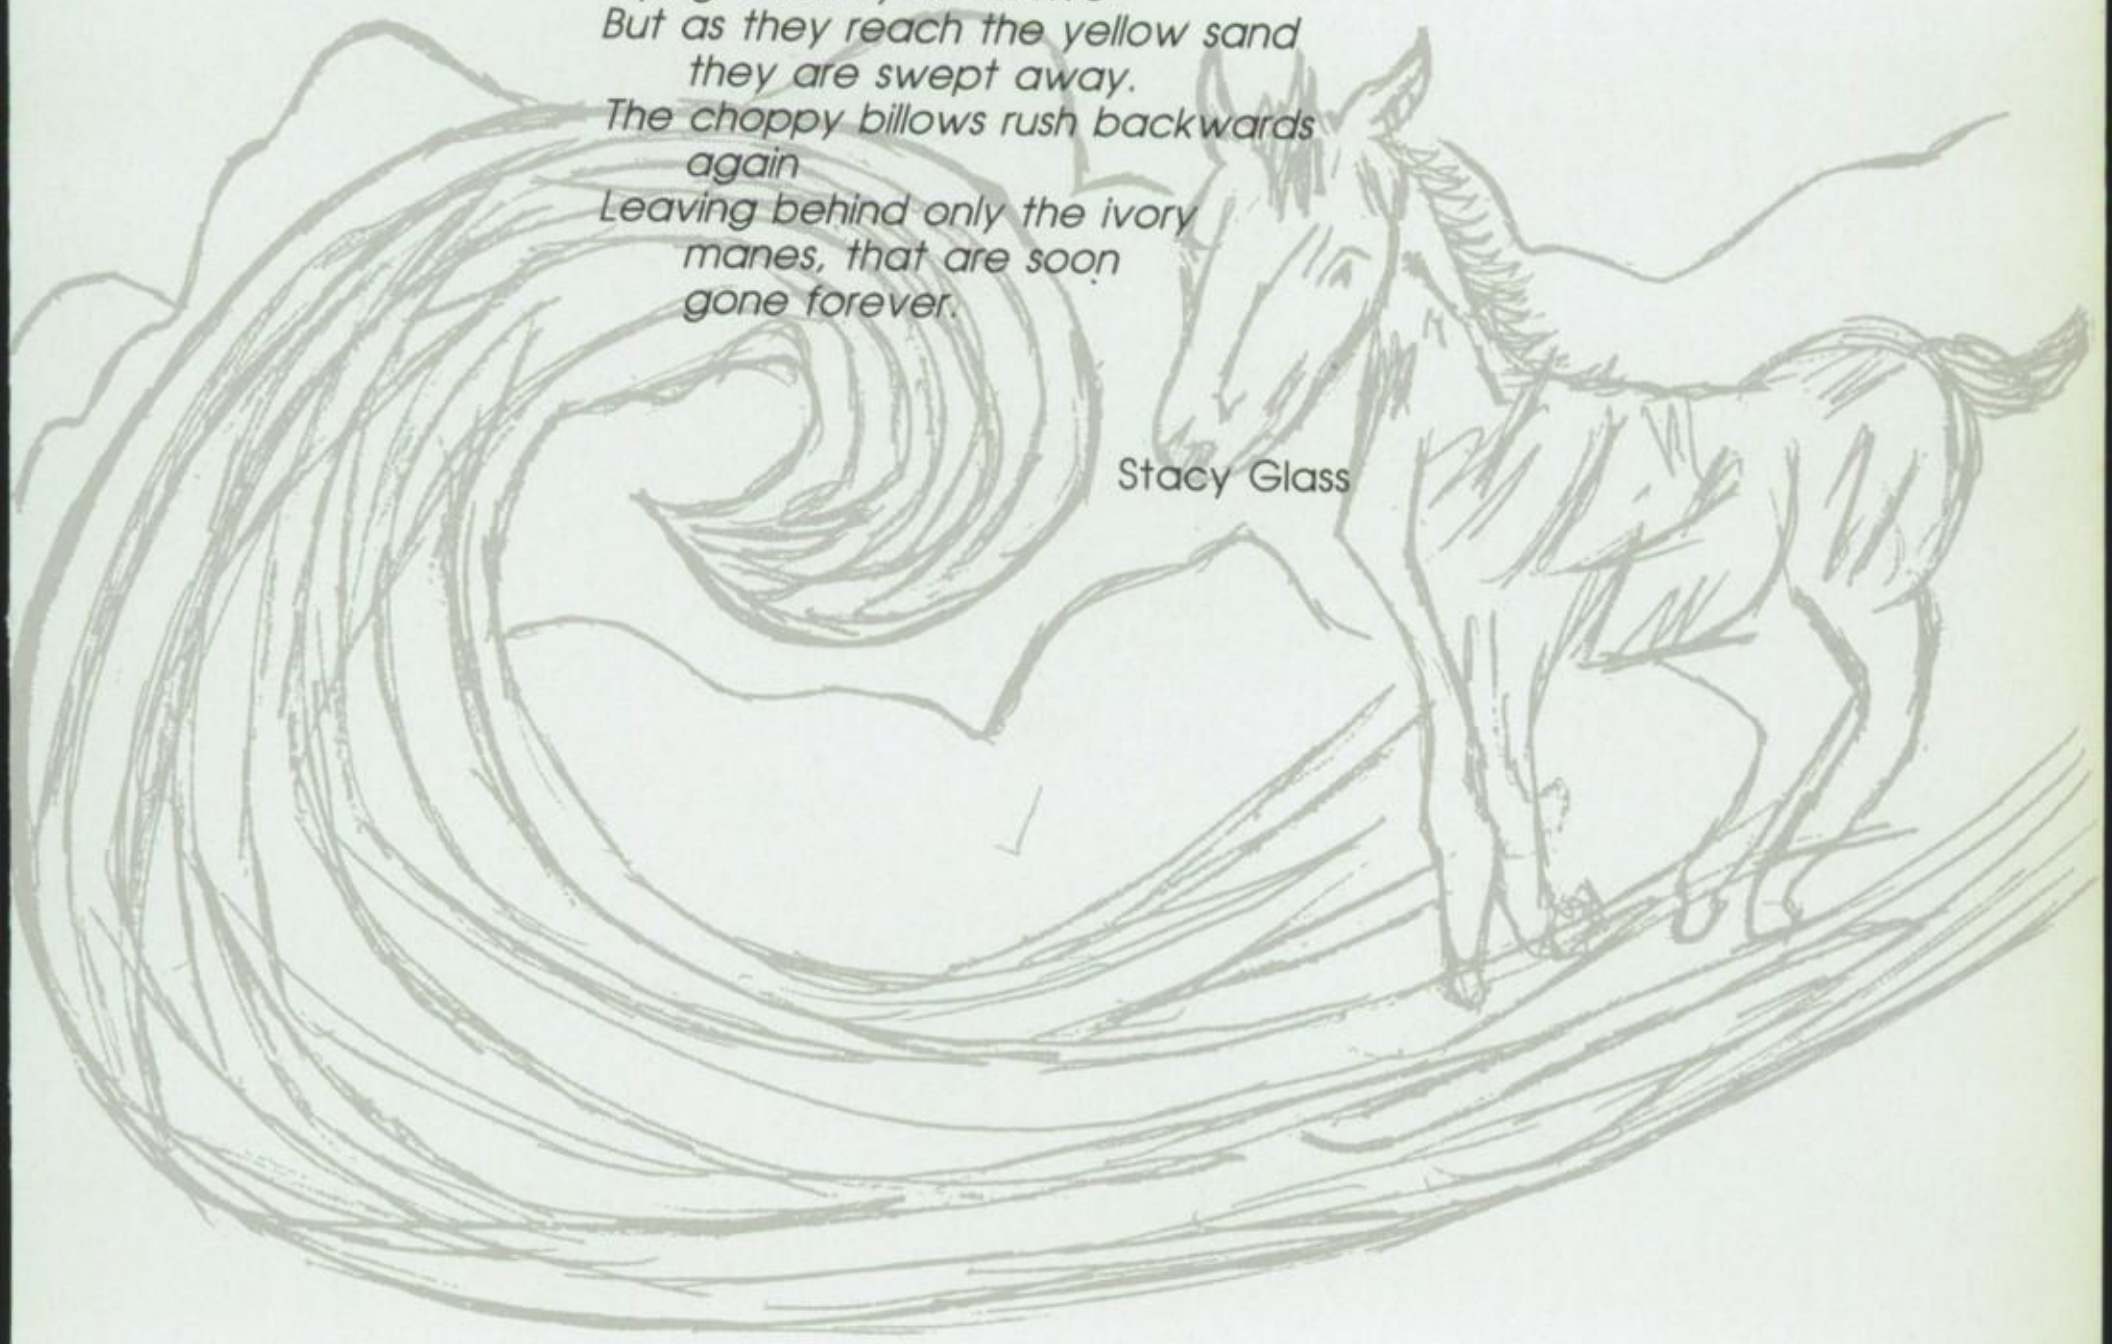
Stacy Glass



THE DROWNING SHELL

The drowning shell pleads as the ocean
tosses it forward
On and on Constant repetition
Sucking its soul from the delicate inner coils
Unwinding precious thoughts
That are now being strewn about in the big blue tear
Dirty
A muddy-shell- the desolate beach
Watching
From a sealed glass case
Never feeling- it gave too much
It cannot breathe
The ugliness cannot be hidden behind mud and grime
One soul, that's all it took
To touch
To awaken the dormant shell
The blue silk sky and crepe shell complement each other
Glowing, radiant, lustrous
The shell
Opening the eyes of stars
Opening the sealed earth
To experience
To embrace
And all too soon
Eyes and earth are shut
Locked
Gone
Disintegrated
One demon
To end it all
The dimming lights
The fading glow
The dull luster
The shell-
Tossed back
And now
Too late to begin again.

Stacy Glass

Morning broke
And slowly unveiled
The shroud of silence
That enveloped the earth;
Her soft beams spoke
To the whispering wind
Which gently roused
The resting leaves;
Every blossom woke
From its drugged slumber
To greet the morn'
With perfumed petals outstretched;
And from each nest did poke,
The beak of every bird
Bubbling with song
To announce her birth;
And all blades of grass did soak
In the early daybreak's dew
Which seeped from the air
That breathed warmth upon the land;
And donned in a cloak
Of palest pastels,
The sky rhymed itself
With the newness of morning.

Geraldine Hoynes

MOVING ON . . . . .

Changing isn't easy
Sometimes it's painful to grow
Leaving here is hard to do
But we know we have to go.

We've learned from our surroundings
The place in which we live
Some people gave a lot to them
Others had little to give

Moving on is difficult
Although it must be done
We'll take with us our knowledge
And respect that we have won

The fun we will remember
The memories we've had
We'll cherish them forever
The good times and the bad.

Alyssa A. Milman

WHEREBY FLIGHT OF FANCY

Whereby flight of fancy

collecting confidence

under my weighty wings;

I am aquarian flowing through rippled undercurrents, wayfaring white horses

diving in the wind's eye - a mental reservation to a startling archipelago

as trees greet with glad hands

my arrival upon this clear stage.

G. Ross Dantzic

A NEW BEGINNING

Blue skies,
Green buds
Yellow glowing sun,
Light breeze,
A start of something new.

Birds chirping,
Flies buzzing,
Bees humming,
Crickets cricketing,
The melody is in the air.

Blooming flowers,
Red, white and yellow,
The fresh scent floating in the air,
The bee endeavoring into the new born flower;
A new beginning.

Sam Friedman

PASSING

Drifting words

blur

in the brightness of classroom lights.

Boredom lingers

past an opened door

with its breeze.

Cascading sounds

echo endlessly from other rooms.

Glancing

across my field

there is one I like.

Few are restless,

making laughter

with a stare.

Pensive moods

broken

by the screech of a chair.

Passing in a class,

passing out a door,

or a passing thought to be passive evermore.

Grayson Ross Dantzic

YOUTH AND IDENTITY

Exuberance and enthusiasm arrive,

cresting, then vanish

in endless troughs, soon to return

Bounce back and above, travel

in comfort, then settle

like the sea's foam

Youth- an available laugh

or convenient smile, a childish giggle

(that troublesome trial).

Winding string

into a ball

rolling condescension

- no more round

than a line

Identity- a photograph, touching bases and inheriting clothes. Remembering the growing ties and those not here.

Youth and Identity
Continuous (superfluous?)- expanding like a sponge to soak up all this knowledge and then to be wrung.

1: Patti- There are too many crazy things to write! Yours and my favorite: Setting off the schools silent alarm! You gave me four wild years- you will always be special to me. Long live Matti and Patti Love Melissa

2: Sam are you still friends with Patti and Melissa? That's weird! Let's get together and go out for a bite. Do you know in some countries we are married? You're a chicken. Love Melissa

3: Ellen: "Has anyone seen my little Motorbike? See you in Siberia, thanxs for behaving. "Where is my red hat?" Whip it- We LOVE DEVO. Love Melissa

4: Heather "You would have never done that freshman year!" The desired one lives in our telephone. Want some Ice Cream? (Hee, Hee, Hee) Let's write a song . . . Teenager in Love. Two more days until MARCH. The list goes on. You make silly hour, every hour. You are the greatest, lauging crying or mellow . . You're not going to get rid of me that easy. You'll always be my best Swedish Pal. Love, Melissa . .

5: Nadine -Hey Baby Budy . . . . HELP, My madalion. What dress do you bet today, Cheater? "wanna get beaten" I'm not Violent. Let's meet in in another 14 years- You're too funny. Love Melissa

6: Erica: Now we are even, a bowl or a head! Knock any garbage cans down in Stanley Kaplan? Can I sit with you, we have to pace! The curve of regression really works. Love to Agatha. You are strange. Love Melissa

7 Jackie- Senior Sing Victory 85! You are a number one Sing leader. Backie and Jen!, chinese food? Stay happy! I will miss you! I love you so much! Luv, Alyssa

8: Music Please: Why must I be in Mr. Marcus's class!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!

9: RACHEL — I know you, you, you — and I'm glad — except you gotta start wearing socks! and stop eating my breakfast bars!! We'll always be together in Electric Dreams! No more Zonettes — I miss it — no I don't! Remember the Usdan wkend? — I didn't put mousse in your drink! His mother is his father! We'd better get MCI!! I love you always, Leigh

10: JACQUELINE — Onè day in the village turned into a spendid friendship — obviously a lasting one. Hold on — I have to blow my nose — What nose?? Hi, Hi. Wait, Wait — But in all serious Jack — I kinda love you, but you're Wacko- (that's my word). I'll never kick you out of my house (except that one time) Please stop asking my ans. machine questions! love Always, Leigh Ann 11: LAUREN — Friends through thick and thin. I'll always be there for you. Just one more year — you can do it!! Don't take yearbook! My favorite memory?? — Assembly line bracelets!! I love you lots, Leigh Ann — Wait- who's Leigh Ann??

12: DONNA — You're so swell! I couldn't think of anyone I'd rather share a turkey sandwich with (not with Genoa salami) — Is Joe working? I need my own Poppy mirror! A new friendship that's bound to last. Hate ya, Leigh

13: Alyssa — Did you ever try it? — then don't say anything!! You are an IDIOT — But I love ya anyway. You You are my favorite secret friend — Love Leigh

14: STEVIE — Don't ever forget the Fuzztone's concert! or running all over the entire city to get General Public albums — we almost missed cause of of you!! I'll never make you go to another Heavy Metal Halloween party again — I love you lots, Leigh

15: DAVID N. — You just gotta ignore everybody — it works — a little. I'll always remember our trip — around the block. Yea right — I went to Snafu — that's so funny. You see, Leigh this is Ground State — and you can never reach it. — I understand. I guess I'm not a party girl but I stll think we make great friends!! Love, Leigh

16: JASON — Please excuse Jason for being . . . . Oh sorry wrong note. You know, I think the only reason you have friends is because you try to be funny — True Story!! But actually, you are probally one of the most intellegent, serious people I know. — Except of course for the fact that you called me a grungy ----er! And of course you dont have the best taste in music but I guess you still qualify as extra-special! Love, Leigh

17: JOSHUA — You gotta write Joshua so they believe it's your mother writing it. I really appreciate being called a Wildman, don't let anyone tell you differently. I wouldn't have survived Latin w/out you — Mrs. Weliky wouldn't have survived!!! When are we taking the Crew picture?? — probally the same time you build a Sing set! All insults aside — You're a pretty incredible person. Love, Leigh

Leigh Ann- I don't know, but maybe we should write a script- or should I do my English paper? Do you think it would be okay if I had a conversation with your answering machine? Can you please change the message? You're very weird and your chicken with garlic really smells bad. (almost rhymes) No, but really, with all seriosly, I hope we have a very long friendship. Who else can I buy Razzles for? Do you want to use my poppy mirror? Remind me to bring it with us next year. I Love You, Jackie P.S.- Want to make some costumes? Benjy- What can I say? (I know I always have something to say) You've made High School great for me. Benjamin, Ben, Benjy, Bee, Foos, and Rio, I love you all very much! I'm looking forward to a lot more great years with you, and at least 300 more movies. Thank you for everything- the music, the movies, the concerts, the sissle, but most of all for being you. Just tell me when to get a dress for the Oscars- I'm going and I'll be ready. Oh yeah, I love the Bebes too! I'll love you forever and ever and ever . . . Your Jay
